The tooth came through her lower gum overnight and was discovered when the nurses at the quintuplets' private hospital made their first inspection of the morning. Annette, who ranks third in weight of the five girls, is the first to have a tooth.

PATH IS CLEARED
FOR SENATE VOTE
ON REPEAL PLAN

Bill, Given 14-to-3 Favorable Report by Committee, Calls for Referendum on July 2.

The state senate Tuesday was ready to take up the bill submitting prohibition repeal to the people in a special election July 2, the way being cleared for the measure when Senator William M. Lester, of Augusta, chairman of the appropriations committee, announced that he would not bring up the general appropriations bill until next week, the final week of the current biennial session. Whether or not the repeal proposal, which Tuesday was given a 14-to-3 favorable report by the committee on temperance, come up for final action today, could not be decided definitely until the rules committee meets this morning, but Senator W. Fred Scott, of Thomasville, the vice chairman of that committee, said Tuesday night that the liquor proposal "probably" would be at the head of today's calendar.

The vote of the temperance committee, however, was taken in executive session and the names of the three senators voting against the favorable report were not made public. However, members of the committee said that all 14 who voted for the favorable report by the committee made it plain that they were not binding themselves to vote for the bill when finally acted upon by the senate. However, it has been generally predicted that the referendum proposal will receive from 30 to 35 votes on final passage. Only 26 votes are needed to adopt it.

Many Amendments Carried.
As the senate considered the measure, the committee carries a number of amendments to the bill approved by the house, which must be considered by the senate before the bill is submitted to the governor if it is passed by the senate.

The committee took no action on the providing for the repeal of the prohibition law, but the repeal of the prohibition law, said Governor Talmadge, is a subject which should be left to the people, and he said he would not support the repeal of the prohibition law.

Dog-Fall May Occur.
There are some prospects that the house will never recede from its position on the dog-fall bill.

Death Is Urged for Unnecessary Companies 'To Avoid Governmental Socialism' in U. S.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—President Roosevelt told congress today that "to avoid governmental socialism"—to which he declared himself opposed—an end should be put to those utility holding companies which could not prove their existence was necessary.

His message brought immediate commendation from senate liberals, aroused a threat of another investigation into charges of utility propaganda against such legislation, and heartened advocates of the Rayburn bill, which would give the utility companies five years in which to close up shop.

In most congressional quarters, the presidential message was construed as a broad endorsement of the Rayburn bill, which was prepared in collaboration with administration experts.

The house commerce committee, which Rayburn heads, is about ready to hear the criticism of a long list of opponents to the measure, having already listened to those favoring it. A companion measure is in the senate interstate commerce committee, but no plans for hearings have been made there yet.

Regulation Urged.
Mr. Roosevelt declared today that it was "idle to talk of the continuation of holding companies on the assumption that regulation can protect the public against them." He added, however, that the proposal to regulate during the five-year process of abolition was "sound."

"Regulation has small chance of ultimate success against the kind of concentrated wealth and power which holding companies have shown the ability to acquire in the utility field," he said of suggestions for permanent regulation.

"Except where it is absolutely necessary to the continued functioning of a geographically integrated operating utility system, the utility holding company with its present powers must go."

Corporate Invention.
Further, in the course of his message, the president said of holding companies:

"It is a corporate invention which has been used to concentrate wealth and power in the hands of a few individuals. It is a device for the concentration of wealth and power in the hands of a few individuals. It is a device for the concentration of wealth and power in the hands of a few individuals."

Cleavage Between Long, Coughlin Widened
As Speculation Follows 'Battle of Epithets'

The quarrel in which General Hugh S. Johnson (center), former NRA chief; Father Charles E. Coughlin (left), radio priest, and Senator Huey P. Long (right), of Louisiana, are engaged is piling up a large collection of denigratory phrases. Johnson first called Long and Father Coughlin "two piggy bankers" and "public political enemies Nos. 1 and 2" among other things. Long called Johnson a "scoundrel" and a "speller and speaker and speller." And Coughlin added to the list by calling Johnson a "chocolate soldier" and a "cracked gramophone record squawking the message of his master's voice." Associated Press photos.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—A widening cleavage between Father Coughlin and Senator Long was seen today in the latest renewal of the spectacular battle of epithets between them, on one side, and General Hugh S. Johnson on the other.

For the most part, the priest and the senator preach the same economic doctrine, but on one point, taking their words at face value, they were widely apart today. That point was the question of supporting President Roosevelt.

Long has lost no opportunity to lambast the administration with accusations of broken promises to redistribute the nation's wealth. Coughlin last night renewed and reaffirmed his 1932 slogan of "Roosevelt or Ruin."

This followed a long period in which the supposition by many here was that the priest was rapidly nearing a position of outright opposition to the administration.

There was speculation without verification as to whether the White House had been in touch with Coughlin since Johnson's first speech attacking him and Long, and it was pointed out that the refraining move announced at the treasury over the week-end.

Winds of Tornadoic Force Lash at Georgia; Many Houses Razed, Property Damage High

Tornadoic winds struck sharply in at least four widely scattered sections of Georgia Tuesday, raising numbers of buildings, injuring one person and causing thousands of dollars' worth of damage.

Reported high wind centers were Macon and Wrightsville, in central Georgia, Valdosta, in south Georgia, and Augusta, on the eastern border of the state.

Sweeping in from the southwest and west, the stormy weather brought heavy rains and strong winds to practically every section of the state.

In Atlanta, there was a rainfall of almost half an inch Tuesday morning. The storm here is to be followed by fair weather and much colder temperatures, the weather bureau predicting a drop to 24 degrees by this morning. This forecast calls for a drop in temperature of 24 degrees from the low of Tuesday morning. The mercury is not expected to exceed 50 degrees today.

Franklin Weather on Coast.
By mid-afternoon Tuesday the freshish weather was being felt in Franklin county, where the wind was blowing from the north at 30 miles an hour. At Savannah, storm signs were out as rain squalls grew increasingly severe and the wind velocity reached 35 miles per hour. The barometer was falling.

Gales increased in intensity at Brunswick and heavy rains fell. Neither city, however, reported any damage.

SMITH PREDICTS
12C COTTON LOAN
WILL BE RENEWED

Statement Appears as Market Stabilizer; Official
Washington Silent on Future Plans.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—A flat assertion today by Senator Smith, democrat, South Carolina, that the government's 12-cent cotton loan would be renewed on this year's crop appeared today as a possible stabilizer for a market that has fluctuated wildly during the past two days.

But Secretary Wallace, Chester C. Davis, farm administrator, and other officials involved met Smith's brief statement to newspapermen with the same silence that characterized their attitude throughout the day, despite numerous statements.

Smith, chairman of the senate agriculture committee, told newspapermen who asked him about the cotton situation that the loan would be continued, but he would add no details.

He did say, however, that he would ask a senate investigation into the precipitate break in cotton prices which provoked concern on Capitol Hill.

Attributed to Rumors.
The break was attributed by some to rumors that the government intended to change its lending policy and that the Bankhead act, compulsory cotton control law, would be further liberalized.

"I want to find out where these reports originated," Smith said. "I will ask my committee to report a resolution asking senate investigation of the whole mess if we have to subpoena cotton exchange officials as well as officials of the department of agriculture."

Deal Made to Discuss Smith's
Prediction. His only statement concerning the cotton situation was: "There is no immediate change contemplated in the government's cotton policy."

Other officials would say only that the Commodity Credit Corporation which makes the loans had not discussed their continuation. They pointed out that last year's loan announcement was not made until August.

Capital on Alert.
Those quarters which are capital interested in cotton were on tip-toe much of the day in the expectation of some official statement as to future plans. Senator Smith had reported yesterday that a banking bill would be forthcoming from the White House.

At the executive mansion, however, it was said that any such statement would come from Secretary Wallace or one of his aides. But at the AAA, officials said nothing of the kind was contemplated.

Officials instead asserted that any announcement at present regarding a loan policy would be premature and added that the bureau of continuing the loans would undoubtedly have the effect of stimulating production this year.

Some observers were inclined to attribute some of the decline to government holdings of cotton.

Although the Commodity Credit Corporation and AAA has actual or potential holdings of approximately 6,000,000 bales, AAA officials discounted that factor as a cause of the present price situation.

Government Loan Plans.
The government in 1933 agreed to lend farmers 10 cents a lint pound on their cotton and to take any loss which resulted if the staple fell below that price.

Cotton was above 10 cents in the 1933-34 season but the loan was raised in 1934 to 12 cents.

Exports declined and the market price remained so close to 12 cents that thousands of farmers preferred the loan to the market. The slump in cotton prices was, however, driven by the AAA toward its first experiment with Secretary Wallace's ever-normal granary plan AAA supply of a commodity held against possible shortages of the future.

The figures showed that enough—

Banking Committee's Quizzing of Eccles Is Shortened in Order To Push Through Measure.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—With only two votes against it, the house passed today the measure which provides an additional $1,750,000,000 for the Home Owner's Loan Corporation to help mortgage burdened home owners.

The bill was sent to the senate after repeated attempts to raise the $1,750,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 were beaten. Members of the banking committee gave assurance—again and again that the bill—provided sufficient funds to help deserving home owners in distress.

Even so, the committee itself had added $250,000,000 to the $1,500,000,000 originally in the measure. It also wrote in a provision that new applications for help might be filed for 60 days after the bill becomes law.

8 Amendments Accepted.
Only eight of two-score amendments were accepted. One of the last adopted boosted from $25,000 to $50,000 the limit on loans—insured up to 20 per cent by the federal housing administration—made by private lending agencies for repair and improvement of commercial structures.

Asserting that if the government guaranteed these loans $200,000,000 would be handed the bankers of the country, Representative Hancock, democrat, North Carolina, demanded the entire section covering them be lifted out of the bill.

The $200,000,000 is the amount provided in the housing act for modernization loans on home mortgages. The bill would open the fund to commercial modernization loans.

While they made a last-minute attempt to shut the measure back to the banking committee, the republican opposition to the bill dwindled down to Representatives Andrews, of New York, and Merritt, of Connecticut.

Eccles Quizzes C. C. Smith.
The banking committee had to cut short its questioning of Marriner S. Eccles, governor of the federal reserve board, on the committee's plan to push through the HOLC bill on the house floor.

It took time first, however, to hear Eccles oppose putting a provision in the banking measure that would direct the reserve board to seek a "fixed price level."

Price maintenance, Eccles said, is not a large enough objective, and actually might lead to great unemployment.

Chattanooga Votes
Bonds for Utility

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 12.—(UP)—Chattanooga today voted by a majority of more than two to one to issue $8,000,000 in bonds to finance a municipal power plant for distribution of Tennessee Valley Authority electricity at low "yardstick" rates.

Complete unofficial returns from the city's 33 precincts tonight showed 19,291 votes for the bond issue and 7,901 votes against it.

The heavy balloting on a day of freakish weather that included rain, sleet, snow and hail, attracted to the interest in the issue between public and private utility ownership. Chattanooga's normal vote is around 18,000.

Hearing on Ward Bill Is Set for Thursday
Governor Talmadge Tuesday announced that he will have a hearing at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning on the bill to reduce the number of Atlanta wards, reduce the city council and reduce the board of education. The governor said a number of city officials opposed to the bill had asked to be heard. The chief executive also invited the members of the Fulton and DeKalb delegations in the house and senate, who sponsored the measure, to be present at the hearing.

The governor Tuesday stood by his veto of the Millican constitutional amendment to make Fulton county a separate senatorial district. Senator G. Everett Millican, the author of the measure, called upon Attorney-General Yeomans for a ruling on the legality of the governor's action in vetoing the measure, indicating that he may attempt to override the veto.

It was pointed out Tuesday that despite the fact that the proposal was given a two-thirds vote of both houses and might get the same majorities in an effort to override the veto it could still be possible for the governor to thwart voting on the amendment by refusing to advertise it as prescribed by law.

HUNGER MARCHERS OUSTED BY SHERIFF

More Than 200 Women,
Men and Children Removed From Courthouse

MCALISTER, Okla., March 12.—(AP)—Under the threat of a tear gas barrage, more than 200 men, women and children "hunger marchers" were ousted today from the courthouse where they had threatened to stay until they were given food, clothing and jobs.

The demonstrators, unemployed coal miners and farmers and their families who had occupied the courthouse since last Friday, offered no resistance when city and county officers appeared at 5 a. m. and threatened to release the bomb unless the place was cleaned within an hour.

"You must get out and stay out as long as I am sheriff of Pittsburg county," Sheriff H. H. Sherrill told the crowd. "You can't run things your own way and you will not be permitted to gather here in the courthouse again, so do not try it."

Before they started to leave, the sheriff gave the leaders his personal check for $100 to purchase food, but insisted it was a donation and "not a bribe to leave."

As the jobless filed out of the building in small groups, deputies escorted them to the city limits. The ragged assemblage of whites and negroes had spent most of the night praying, singing hymns and listening to a negro quartet.

Yesterday they had refused to leave the building to accept food sent from Oklahoma City by Governor E. W. Marland. They said they were afraid to leave for fear they would be locked out. The food, carried in two army trucks, remained untouched. Instead, the marchers munched sandwiches purchased with a $10 donation from Mayor Bryan Burton, of Krebs, a village three miles from here. He told the demonstrators they could come to the Krebs city hall to cook their food.

Measure To Bar Jurors From Capitalizing Urged

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—A bill making it unlawful for jurors in criminal cases to capitalize on their notoriety was introduced today by Senator Duffy, democrat, Wisconsin.

Duffy said he was prompted in drafting the measure by reports that members of the Lindbergh jury had made lucrative offers for stage appearances after they had convicted Bruno Hauptmann of the murder of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's infant son.

36 Burglaries Laid To 7 Men Held Here

An indictment in 36 counts charging burglary was returned by the Fulton county grand jury Tuesday against W. H. Morgan, E. C. Wheeler, J. A. Jenkins, J. L. Jenkins, Ed Wheeler, Windall Fowler and T. H. Carlan, held in the Atlanta police station to answer to the longest list of burglaries and safe-crackings ever laid to one band in the county, according to officers.

Four of the men, Morgan, Ed Wheeler, Jess Jenkins and Windall Fowler, pleaded guilty Monday in De Kalb county to three burglaries in that county and were given sentences ranging from 5 to 15 years. Cash and goods listed in the various counts in the Fulton county burglaries amounts to more than $5,000. Among the larger hauls were the $726 cash burglary of National Food Company, $416 cash taken from Georgia Feed & Grocery Company and $350 in money from Lane Drug Store. E. C. Wheeler and Windall Fowler also are charged with larceny of an automobile from W. H. Fralix.

Morgan is named in 22 of the counts, the others being grouped in the various charges.

STATE AVIATION BODY URGED IN ALABAMA
MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 12. (UP)—A group representing the aviation industry in Alabama today asked a recess committee on highways to favor a bill recreating a state aviation commission.

The bill provides diversion of approximately $14,000 a year from gasoline tax revenues to provide for the commission's operation.

KEETON GIRL GIVEN LIFE IN SLAYING

Mississippi Woman Convicted of 'Butcher Murder' of Widowed Mother.

LAUREL, Miss., March 12.—(AP)—Ouida Keeton was found guilty today of the "butcher murder" of her widowed mother, Mrs. Daisy Keeton, with a jury recommendation of life imprisonment.

Judge W. Joe Pack, presiding in Jones county circuit court, immediately sentenced the emotionless defendant to spend "the balance of your natural life in the state penitentiary."

Her eyes closed, her lips and face pallid, Ouida showed no sign that she understood or even heard the verdict, or the sentence of the court. Described as insane by her counsel, and a number of physicians, the 33-year-old former secretary failed to impress the jury of Jones county farmers as insane despite her apparent helplessness in the courtroom during the two weeks of her trial.

She has lain limp in a wheel chair in the courtroom and each night is returned to the Laurel General Hospital where she has been confined for the past several weeks suffering from an apparent breakdown.

As soon as the sentence of the court was pronounced upon the once beautiful defendant, defense attorneys immediately filed a motion for a new trial. Judge Pack set Saturday morning to hear arguments on the motion.

In the event the motion is denied, Defense Attorneys F. Burkitt Collins and Frank Clark said today they would file an appeal to the state supreme court, which would automatically stay Ouida's removal to the penitentiary for several months.

Only two ballots were taken by the jury. Foreman Alonzo Blackwell said. The first ballot found all the jurors except one agreeing on her guilt and recommending life imprisonment. The twelfth juror, who wished to "study about the matter a little more," made the vote unanimous on the next ballot.

Hordes of Young Americans To Meet at Fox on Saturday

Hundreds of Young Americans will fill the Fox theater next Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock when the first meeting of The Constitution
Junior Readers' Young America Club convenes.

Songs, dances, magic, moving pictures, and an exceptionally entertaining surprise feature are all promised the club members at their first meeting. Mayor Key will be there to add his encouragement toward successful citizenship, wholesome recreation, and constructive activity as offered by the Young America Club.

So great has been the demand for membership in the club that the supply of buttons and membership cards is almost exhausted, and many of the applications cannot be filled until next week when a hurried shipment of insignia will arrive from the manufacturers. In order that everyone applying for membership may be admitted to the first meeting, application blanks may be used to gain admittance. Those planning to come to the meeting have not yet mailed in their applications should hold them and present them at the door of the Fox Saturday morning.

Dozens of letters and telephone calls every day indicate that it will be necessary to come to the Fox well before 10:30 o'clock Saturday morning in order to get a good seat. A number of Boy Scouts will be on hand to see that all the members get seats with as little confusion as possible. Parents of the younger boys and girls are welcome to come with them. Those parents who intend to leave their children and come back for them after the meeting should return between 12:15 and 12:30.

An application blank is reproduced below for those children who have not already sent in one. Admission to the meeting and entertainment Saturday will be by membership card, Young America button, or application blank properly filled out. All Young Americans plan to come and bring a party of friends!

TENNESSEAN TO HEAD SURGICAL CONGRESS
JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 12. (AP)—Dr. William D. Haggard, of Nashville, Tenn., today was formally installed as president of the Southeastern Surgical Congress.

New Orleans was chosen as the 1935 assembly site. Dr. C. Jeff Miller, of New Orleans, was named president-elect and will take office next year. Dr. Haggard succeeds Dr. Gerry R. Holten, of Jacksonville.

Virginia was voted into the congress, which includes 11 states. Other officers elected were Dr. C. C. Howard, of Kentucky, vice president, and Dr. R. T. Beasley, of Atlanta, re-elected secretary-treasurer and director-general.

For the second straight day, the congress heard a number of technical papers prepared by specialists.

PROBE IS REOPENED
AS POISON IS FOUND
IN FAMILY'S FLOUR

SHELBYVILLE, Tenn., March 12. (UP)—Discovery of deadly arsenic in lead poisoning in flour used at a Bedford county farm home today led officers and physicians to reopen investigation of the death of one person and paralysis of three others.

Mrs. Jesse Gambill, 38, died two weeks ago after being stricken with a mysterious ailment.

Jesse Gambill, 60, husband, and Fred Perryman, 15, stepson, were recovering in a Nashville hospital from paralytic strokes.

A sister, Mrs. Beattie Davis, was confined to bed at Petersburg, Tenn. Dr. V. L. Fuqua, state chemist, today announced presence of arsenic in the flour.

Gambill refused to reveal the identity of an alleged enemy who he claimed "might do a thing like that." Sheriff Tom Gant sought for questioning a negro cook who worked for the family shortly before the strokes were suffered.

MRS. H. P. SMITH, 76,
PASSES IN MANSFIELD
Mrs. H. P. Smith, 76 years of age, died Tuesday at her home in Mansfield, Ga.

Mrs. Smith was the mother of S. M. (Sherry) Smith, of Porterdale, a pitcher with the Atlanta Crackers in 1928, and formerly with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Mrs. Smith is survived by another son, S. R. Smith, of Atlanta, and Mrs. W. P. Hartman, Mrs. L. E. Hartman and Mrs. Ike A. Harwell, of Mansfield, and Mrs. Frank Osborne.

Funeral services will be held today at 2:30 o'clock at the Methodist church in Mansfield.

Many Atlanta friends of the Smith family are expected to attend the services today.

SOUTHERN DAIRIES, INC.,
TO ERECT NEW PLANT

A new, modern milk distribution plant will be erected by Southern Dairies, Inc., on a 200 by 250-foot lot at Glen Iris drive and North avenue. N. E. announcement of the purchase of the land being made Tuesday.

The price paid for the plot, which is near Sears-Roebuck Company, was not made public. The real estate deal was handled by Hase, Howell and Dood, and the property was sold by E. McC. Adamson, George Hine, manager of Southern Dairies, which is now located on Piedmont avenue, said the new plant would be constructed as soon as possible.

WOMAN FINED $300
FOR DIAMOND THEFT

Mrs. Nellie Norman, fortune teller, was fined $300 and given a 12-month suspended sentence Tuesday in Fulton superior court when she pleaded guilty before Judge William Woodrum to a charge of larceny after trust.

Mrs. Norman admitted she obtained a ring valued at $5,000 from Mrs. Fannie M. Dabney, of 1720 Peachtree street. The handkerchief trick, by which the fortune teller "blesses" an article, wraps it in the handkerchief and returns it to the owner for future opening, was said to have been employed in the swindle. When Mrs. Dabney opened the handkerchief she found a 10-cent ring in place of the diamond.

POLICE VIGIL RESULTS
IN ARREST OF SUSPECT

Police "tuned in" on the underworld grapevine communication system Monday night and intercepted a message which revealed an attempt would be made early Tuesday morning to rob the Heidelberg restaurant at 931 Boulevard, N. E.

Radio Patrolmen O. M. Morgan and M. E. Dodd stationed themselves in a clump of weeds near the restaurant and after waiting until almost daylight were rewarded when a man, later identified as L. R. Brinkley, 29, of a Rankin street address, let himself into the store with a pass key. He was arrested and held on a charge of suspicion of attempted burglary.

MERGER WAS SALE, SAID U. S. TO MELLON

Former Executive Is Quetioned on Preliminaries to Huge Deal.

PITTSBURGH, March 12.—(AP)—In an all-day cross-examination, the government today pushed its charges that Andrew W. Mellon profited more than $6,000,000 upon which he should have paid an income tax in the transaction that placed the McClintic-Marshall Corporation under control of the Bethlehem Steel.

F. R. Shearer, attorney for the internal revenue bureau, carried Earl J. Patterson, former secretary-treasurer of McClintic-Marshall, through details of various stockholder and directors' meetings at which preliminaries to the $21,000,000 deal were handled.

Mellon is protesting before the United States board of tax appeals a $3,089,000 assessment on his 1931 income—more than $1,000,000 of which the government charges is due from the McClintic-Marshall transaction with Bethlehem.

Shearer said that while the merger was pending, McClintic-Marshall, on advice of counsel, decided to segregate into one holding company all the assets which Bethlehem did not want.

These assets, with a book value of $4,000,000 included 83 1-2 per cent of the Koppers Company, of Delaware stock, cash and other securities. The new concern was called the Union Construction Company.

Shearer had Patterson describe the meetings of stockholders and boards of directors of the seven subsidiaries. Shearer brought out that at the Pittsburgh meetings, only four men were present, C. D. McClintic, H. H. Marshall, Patterson and E. A. Gibbs, and that the minutes of the subsidiary concerns showed these four every ten minutes changed from a stockholders' meeting to a directors' meeting.

Shearer claimed this process went on until all had approved the transactions.

The government is trying to prove its claim that the contracts were put on a screen behind which the McClintic-Marshall Corporation sought to liquidate part of its holdings to avoid taxes; that Bethlehem did not actually merge with the company (such a transaction would not be taxable) but actually purchased part of its assets, thereby giving Andrew Mellon part of the profits he had acquired since he had helped organize the company 30 years before.

Andrew and his brother, the late R. B. Mellon, owned 60 per cent of the McClintic-Marshall stock, holding 30 per cent each.

Mellon himself spent but five minutes at today's hearing, spending most of the day at his office.

PROBE IS REOPENED
AS POISON IS FOUND
IN FAMILY'S FLOUR

SHELBYVILLE, Tenn., March 12. (UP)—Discovery of deadly arsenic in lead poisoning in flour used at a Bedford county farm home today led officers and physicians to reopen investigation of the death of one person and paralysis of three others.

Mrs. Jesse Gambill, 38, died two weeks ago after being stricken with a mysterious ailment.

Jesse Gambill, 60, husband, and Fred Perryman, 15, stepson, were recovering in a Nashville hospital from paralytic strokes.

A sister, Mrs. Beattie Davis, was confined to bed at Petersburg, Tenn. Dr. V. L. Fuqua, state chemist, today announced presence of arsenic in the flour.

Gambill refused to reveal the identity of an alleged enemy who he claimed "might do a thing like that." Sheriff Tom Gant sought for questioning a negro cook who worked for the family shortly before the strokes were suffered.

MRS. H. P. SMITH, 76,
PASSES IN MANSFIELD
Mrs. H. P. Smith, 76 years of age, died Tuesday at her home in Mansfield, Ga.

Mrs. Smith was the mother of S. M. (Sherry) Smith, of Porterdale, a pitcher with the Atlanta Crackers in 1928, and formerly with the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Mrs. Smith is survived by another son, S. R. Smith, of Atlanta, and Mrs. W. P. Hartman, Mrs. L. E. Hartman and Mrs. Ike A. Harwell, of Mansfield, and Mrs. Frank Osborne.

Funeral services will be held today at 2:30 o'clock at the Methodist church in Mansfield.

Many Atlanta friends of the Smith family are expected to attend the services today.

SOUTHERN DAIRIES, INC.,
TO ERECT NEW PLANT

A new, modern milk distribution plant will be erected by Southern Dairies, Inc., on a 200 by 250-foot lot at Glen Iris drive and North avenue. N. E. announcement of the purchase of the land being made Tuesday.

The price paid for the plot, which is near Sears-Roebuck Company, was not made public. The real estate deal was handled by Hase, Howell and Dood, and the property was sold by E. McC. Adamson, George Hine, manager of Southern Dairies, which is now located on Piedmont avenue, said the new plant would be constructed as soon as possible.

WOMAN FINED $300
FOR DIAMOND THEFT

Mrs. Nellie Norman, fortune teller, was fined $300 and given a 12-month suspended sentence Tuesday in Fulton superior court when she pleaded guilty before Judge William Woodrum to a charge of larceny after trust.

Mrs. Norman admitted she obtained a ring valued at $5,000 from Mrs. Fannie M. Dabney, of 1720 Peachtree street. The handkerchief trick, by which the fortune teller "blesses" an article, wraps it in the handkerchief and returns it to the owner for future opening, was said to have been employed in the swindle. When Mrs. Dabney opened the handkerchief she found a 10-cent ring in place of the diamond.

POLICE VIGIL RESULTS
IN ARREST OF SUSPECT

Police "tuned in" on the underworld grapevine communication system Monday night and intercepted a message which revealed an attempt would be made early Tuesday morning to rob the Heidelberg restaurant at 931 Boulevard, N. E.

Radio Patrolmen O. M. Morgan and M. E. Dodd stationed themselves in a clump of weeds near the restaurant and after waiting until almost daylight were rewarded when a man, later identified as L. R. Brinkley, 29, of a Rankin street address, let himself into the store with a pass key. He was arrested and held on a charge of suspicion of attempted burglary.

LAKEWOOD PARK GRANDSTAND ROOF IS BEING REMOVED

The huge grandstand at Lakewood park, the Southeastern Fair grounds is being transformed into a stadium type stand, such as is used for major football games at universities.

Workers have been busy demolishing the roof to the stand and shortly there will be no resemblance of cover which formerly kept off the sunshine and kept out the rain.

Just before the 1933 Southeastern Fair started, a heavy wind blew off a large section of the grandstand roof. Repairs were made and one-half of the stand was roofed in 1934. In 1935 there will be no roof, and the cement structure will resemble the stadium seating arrangements.

The wind which blew down the fences on Lakewood avenue recently, proved a blessing in disguise, officials said. Iron and wire fence with top barb wire protections from "fence gaters" will supplant the unsightly wood fence.

The wood railing at the bottom of the grandstand also will be supplanted by a waist-high iron fence.

DR. FRANK TRIPP,
BAPTIST LEADER, TO SPEAK TONIGHT

Dr. Frank Tripp, of St. Joseph, Mo., director of the Baptist Hundred Thousand Club movement, is in Atlanta today and will be heard at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Druid Hills Baptist church in an address on the progress of Baptist work throughout the south. At 5:15 o'clock this afternoon Dr. Tripp will be heard in an interview with Dr. Louis D. Newton over station WSB.

Dr. Tripp will speak to the state W. M. U. convention at Bessie Tift College early this afternoon, returning by motor to Atlanta in time for his engagement here this afternoon and tonight. He will leave Atlanta early Thursday for St. Louis.

With more than $200,000 already received on the Baptist Hundred Thousand Club movement, and with rapidly increasing membership in every state throughout the south, Dr. Tripp believes that Southern Baptists will go to Memphis for their annual convention in May with the finest financial reports in many years.

Baptist leaders of Atlanta and neighboring communities are invited to hear Dr. Tripp at Druid Hills tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

New Tax Evasion Bill Faces Huey's Friend

NEW ORLEANS, March 12.—(AP) Materially increasing the total of amounts of alleged attempted income tax evasion, the federal grand jury here today returned a new indictment against Abe L. Shushan, president of the Orleans levee board and a close political associate of Senator Huey P. Long.

The new indictment charged alleged attempts to evade income tax payments in 1933 and amended a previous indictment charging efforts by Shushan to defeat tax payments in 1929, 1930, 1931, and 1932.

Today's indictment came as the government made preparations to put on trial eight persons charged with alleged attempts to evade and defeat payment of federal income taxes.

FILENE SAYS LONG LEADS TO DICTATORSHIP

BOSTON, March 12.—(AP)—Edward Filene, Boston merchant and publicist, tonight declared that the success of the Townsend plan or of the views advocated by the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin or Senator Huey P. Long would pave the way for an American dictatorship.

Back from a trip through the west during which he attended a Townsend plan rally in California and sat in the state house at Baton Rouge, La., while Long carried on the state's business, Filene charged that the great danger to organized American business was that it would "cut its own throat by turning our government over to irresponsible radicals."

There was still time for business to save the situation, Filene added, "but not much time."

He characterized the proponents of Townsend and other plans as "apostles of economic vagaries" and added: "Long, Coughlin, Townsend and others are effects, not causes, of our present economic mess."

MRS. HAAS TO PRESENT WOMAN LECTURER

Mrs. Leonard Haas, past president of the Atlanta League of Women Voters, will introduce Mrs. Lawrence Mitchell today at 3:15 p. m. in the second of her series of lectures on correct table setting, in Davison's restaurant, sixth floor.

Wednesday's lecture will be on "The Luncheon Table." The lectures are a feature of Davison's annual table setting contest showing the year 10 tables set by prominent women's clubs of Atlanta. The winning table will be awarded $50 in gold.

A popularity prize of a 3-piece international silver coffee service goes to the table receiving the most votes. Ballots for voting may be obtained at Mrs. Mitchell's lectures today and Thursday.

Argentina and Chile To Seek Chaco Peace

GENEVA, March 12.—(AP)—A new and determined effort to terminate the Chaco War by Latin-American nations under the leadership of Argentina and Chile was considered probable tonight in South American circles here.

The Argentine, Luis Guinazu, announced that recently ruffled feelings between Chile and Argentina resulting in an exchange of letters between the two presidents had been smoothed over.

Gonzalo Zaldumbide, of Ecuador, declared today for strict enforcement of the League of Nations covenant in the Chaco War, which was generally interpreted as meaning his country is ready to participate in penalties against Paraguay if such penalties are decided upon.

Cesar Zimic, of Venezuela, came out flatly against penalties and "peace by compulsory means" which would only sow seeds of future hatred and conflicts.

DEMOCRATS FIGHT
RELIEF BILL SLASHAdministration Weathers
Two Test-Vote Attacks on Measure.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—Senate administration leaders herded the $4,880,000,000 relief bill through two test votes today, only to meet later with a determined insurgent effort to clip the proposed appropriation to half its size.

The majority chiefs succeeded in downing with a 75 to 25 vote an amendment by Senator Long, democrat, Louisiana, to set aside a billion dollars of the fund to provide college education for needy youths.

Then they mustered a 56 to 32 vote to beat an amendment proposed by Costigan, democrat, Colorado, which would have broadened the terms of the bill to include "useful public works," especially state, municipal and other non-federal projects.

The big measure then ran into a siege of debate led by democrats both from the agricultural sections and big city states. From both came questioning of the value of the measure to the unemployed in their respective types of communities.

Copeland Asks Cut.
After Senator Byrd, democrat, Virginia, made public a report from the treasury showing that $1,500,000,000 of the $3,300,000,000 public works fund appropriated two years ago remained unexpended, Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, opened the battle to cut the new relief outlay to $1,880,000,000. Byrd favors a $1,000,000,000 appropriation.

"We are not going to pay our way to prosperity," Copeland told the senate. "We are going to buy our way to poverty."

Senator Long predicted that "95 per cent" of the big relief fund would be wasted. Senator Tydings, democrat, Maryland, who lives near Baltimore, joined Copeland in his argument that the bill would be spent on western power, irrigation and soil erosion projects, would not help 2,000,000 on relief in New York city. The Marylander also called for a reduction in the sum to $1,880,000,000.

Arising to defend the bill, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, said the bill provided $300,000,000 for white collar workers' projects in the cities.

Connally's Answer.
As the dust of the vote settled in a day of many developments, Senator Connally, democrat, Texas, contended the persons to whom Tydings and Robinson would restrict the bill to be the direct result of appropriation. Copeland asserted that the large appropriation would endanger the nation's credit and agreeing with this, Tydings advocated cutting it down to provide for direct relief only and to "let public works go for a while."

Evidencing concern, the McCarran presiding officer called for a reduction in action on the controversial amendment to realign their votes. The battle over this proposal, which reduced the appropriation to $1,880,000,000, 44 to 43, three weeks ago, has been the principal cause of the measure's delay.

Senator Davis, republican, Pennsylvania, sick at Battle Creek, Mich., Senator Long indicated today that this proposition of the prevailing amendment would be a defeat for his vote could be paired—an opponent who would agree not to vote.

Defeat Expected.
Administration forces, however, appeared confident of defeating the proposal with the added support of Senators Gibson and Austin, Vermont republicans.

Meanwhile, some western senators, including McCarran, democrat, Nevada, sought to assure their states of some slices of the big fund by inserting amendments. Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, chairman of the appropriations committee, however, said the language in the measure already was sufficiently broad to cover allocations to irrigation, reclamation and similar projects.

Senator Logan, democrat, Kentucky, demanded the senate stop haggling over the measure lest those in want "die of starvation" before it passed.

Other Developments.
Among the developments during the day were:

The senate adopted committee amendments eliminating miscellaneous purposes of the bill.

The McCarran amendment to specify irrigation and reclamation projects in the $200,000,000 earmarked for rural rehabilitation and relief in stricken farm areas, although objected to by Senator Byrnes, democrat, South Carolina, as unnecessary, was accepted by Glass in order to expedite the bill.

An amendment by Costigan to specify water conservation and transmountain diversion, offered by Steiwer, republican, Oregon, to specify rivers and harbors in the $350,000,000 earmarked for flood control and miscellaneous projects also were accepted by Glass.

Senator Long denied he was seeking to delay the bill, despite two speeches for his college education amendment, which he said, would give 800,000 "young men and women" a college education at the rate of $15 a month.

GA. STRIKE SITUATION
STIRS GORMAN'S FIRE

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—Definite hints of a new textile strike came today from within the ranks of the United Textile workers.

The executive board of the United Textile Union has been summoned to meet next Wednesday to consider immediate production.

Angered particularly by the situation in Georgia, where 3,000 employees of the Callaway mills are reported on strike, Francis J. Gorman, organization director of the union, declared in a statement:

"The strike settlement of last September was definite enough in its promise. It must now be equally definite in performance."

Simultaneously with their strike warning, the United Textile workers filed formal complaint today against the Callaway mills, charging specific violations of the cotton textile code.

Employees of the Callaway mills are on strike in three Georgia communities—LaGrange, Manchester and Millstead—the employees allege introduction of a new stretch-out system and a general wage reduction.

Cason J. Callaway, head of the Callaway mills, was quoted by Gorman as having refused to come to Washington unless formally served with an official summons.

The summoning of the union board followed.

"We have here," Gorman said, "the most serious situation since the September strike. Cason Callaway, regarded as close to the White House and as trading on White House support . . . and operating under the protection of the governor of Georgia and his strike-breaking troops, has been picked as the leader of a national union-smashing campaign."

"If we have to meet that fight on the national field we shall do it and we shall win. It is definitely up to the industry and to the textile labor relations board whether this strike is to be settled where it is or in a larger field. Our executive board will come here next week to meet the requirements of the situation, whatever they may be."

CALLAWAY MILLS RUNNING ALMOST COMPLETELY MANNED
LAGRANGE, Ga., March 12.—(AP) Officials of the Callaway mills said today that their textile mills here and in Manchester were operating with almost complete shifts. They reported that more than 95 per cent of the number normally employed on the morning shift were at work, this being the largest percentage reported at work since the strike began 12 days ago.

L. C. Ernest, president of the local textile union, said, however, that there were "still a lot of people on strike." He gave no estimate of the number of strikers.

The situation here and at Manchester remained quiet. Attention of mill officials and strike leaders turned toward Washington where a spokesman for the textile labor relations board said some indication of the board's progress regarding the strike may be forthcoming soon.

The board held a special session yesterday but adjourned without making any announcement.

MRS. EMMA LA HATTE,
CATHOLIC LEADER, DIESWidely Known Atlanta Woman was President of Altar Society at Church.

Mrs. Emma Elizabeth LaHatte, one of the most prominent Catholic lay workers in Atlanta, died Tuesday night at her residence at 517 Winton terrace, N. E., following five years of failing health. She was 68.

Wife of the late Charles O. LaHatte, who was president of the James A. LaHatte Printing Company here until his death 15 years ago, Mrs. LaHatte was a leader in the affairs of the Immaculate Conception parish.

She was president of the Altar Society and the Missionary Society of the Immaculate Conception church for many years and was an indefatigable worker in the many organizations and circles of her church.

During the World War, Mrs. LaHatte gave of her time and energy unsparingly in behalf of the Red Cross and its humanitarian service.

She was the former Miss Emma Elizabeth Galvin, born and reared in Nashville, Tenn., where as a girl she was graduated with highest honors from the St. Cecilia Academy.

She and her late husband formerly resided in Augusta before coming to Atlanta about 32 years ago and he was connected with the Augusta Chronicle and the Herald.

Surviving are seven daughters, Miss Lucille, Miss Maribelle and Miss Mildred LaHatte, Mrs. E. S. Parks, Mrs. E. L. Credille and Mrs. James R. Krenson, of Atlanta, and Mrs. John X. Mulvey, of Cincinnati, Ohio, and three sons, Charles G. and J. Thornton LaHatte, of Atlanta, and James A. LaHatte, of Detroit, Mich.

Arrangements for the funeral, which will be held Thursday, will be announced by Sam Greenberg & Co.

MINIMUM CHARGE CUT FOR CORN SHIPMENTS

Reduction in the minimum charge on shipments of corn by the railroads was ordered Tuesday by Chairman Jud P. Wilhoit for the public service commission of Georgia.

Railroads have been charging for a minimum load of 40,000 pounds or 500 bushels, but the new order reduces the minimum charge for a load of 32,000 pounds. Wilhoit said it was impossible to load 40,000 pounds of corn in a railroad car and therefore farmers have been paying for something they weren't getting.

Munitions Probe Hearing
Halted by Near Fist Fight

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—Flats clenched, William G. Shearer, vociferous big navy advocate, today brought an abrupt end to a turbulent senate munitions committee hearing by advancing upon a committee member who had called him "cowardly."

The name of President Roosevelt himself was included in a list of anti-Americans which were found in a pamphlet published by Shearer in 1928.

This aroused Senator Bone, democrat, Washington, who lashed the bulky Shearer and precipitated the outbreak that ended only when Chairman Nye, republican, North Dakota, crashed his fist on the table for order and shortly afterward brought the hearing to a close.

As was expected, Shearer made a lot of charges himself, among them that Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia, and Bernard Baruch, financier, were "anti-American." Baruch has been a favorite radio target of Father Coughlin and Huey Long.

Nye said Baruch, adviser to several presidents, would be called to testify. He is expected to appear on March 25 as to his activities as head of the war industries board and will be given an opportunity to reply to Long and Coughlin. The committee expects tomorrow to question Patrick J. Hurley, former secretary of war; James A. Dray, past national commander of the American Legion; and James E. Van Zandt, president of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, tomorrow.

Shearer today said the pamphlet, listing the name of the president with others under the heading "Knaves or Fools" was a "Heart editorial."

He conceded, however, that he published the material in his pamphlet without naming its source.

"Are you so cowardly that you hide behind the cloak of Hearst's newspapers," Senator Bone snapped.

"I don't like that word cowardly,"

Shearer said, rising from the witness chair and swinging down the aisle. Chairman Nye, republican, North Dakota, shouted and pounded for order. "Take your seat," he roared at Shearer.

"Then stop hurling that 'cowardly' stuff," Shearer declared amid the uproar.

He avoided answering directly any of Bone's questions as to whether he considered the president "un-American."

The exchange followed Shearer's defense of his actions in insisting on a strong American navy when he appeared at the Geneva naval limitations conference in 1927 as a representative of the shipyards.

The charge has been made that Shearer was largely responsible for the failure of the 1927 parity.

Shared Confidence.
Shearer testified he shared the confidence of naval officials to such an extent that he was entrusted with secret documents of the navy department on his trips to Geneva.

"I wish to make it a matter of record," he declared, "that every fight that I made in the interest of the United States navy was made at the request of naval officers."

He charged that Drew Pearson, a newspaperman at the naval conference, had perjured himself in asserting an American naval officer had said Shearer "broke up" the Geneva conference.

He said Pearson had been engaged by Sir Wilton Lewis, British newspaperman, to make the statement, Lewis, he described as "a very active" British propagandist in Washington "putting his nose in everything."

Financed By Hearst.
Shearer declared he was financed by William Randolph Hearst, the publisher, in a suit in 1924 to prevent sinking of the unfinished battleship Washington.

This was justified, he said, "in view of the naval war college information that was in my hands . . . plus the further evidence . . . that a foreign power had retained 50,000 tons of capital ships over and above the Washington treaty tonnage."

The committee then was told that he protested any limitation on the American navy and advocated in 1926 and 1927 that naval gun ranges be increased.

"With 13 of our capital ships," he said, "we couldn't have come within 3,000 yards of the British and Japanese ships in a battle."

Shearer said he finally was discharged by the shipbuilding companies in 1929, because of the pressure growing out of a government threat to sue Charles M. Schwab, of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, in connection with war-time contracts.

PATH IS CLEARED
FOR SENATE VOTE

its liberal tendencies Tuesday when the house by a vote of 103 to 70 passed the Johnson-Claiborne bill to legalize horse racing and pari-mutuel betting in the state. The measure was sponsored by Representative Johnson, of Seminole county, and Claiborne, of Camden county. The opposition was led by Representative Weeks, of Columbia county, and Representative Wrench, of Charlton county. The measure barely received the constitutional majority, 103 votes, necessary for passage and Representative Wrench announced that he would move for reconsideration this morning. On a move for reconsideration the majority of those voting is binding.

Under the terms of the bill a commission to supervise horse racing and the operation of the pari-mutuel system of betting would be set up, the state to get a 3 per cent "take" of all the funds run through the machines.

The bill as adopted by the house is a companion measure to that submitted to the senate several weeks ago by Senator Homer Edenfield which has been held in committee awaiting action by the house of the Johnson-Claiborne measure.

Further evidence . . . that a foreign power had retained 50,000 tons of capital ships over and above the Washington treaty tonnage."

The committee then was told that he protested any limitation on the American navy and advocated in 1926 and 1927 that naval gun ranges be increased.

"With 13 of our capital ships," he said, "we couldn't have come within 3,000 yards of the British and Japanese ships in a battle."

Shearer said he finally was discharged by the shipbuilding companies in 1929, because of the pressure growing out of a government threat to sue Charles M. Schwab, of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, in connection with war-time contracts.

HOUSE IN TANGLE OVER TRUCK BILL

Unanimous Consent Request Brings Threat to Arrest Absentees.

After completing passage of a bill providing for the election of a lieutenant governor in 1936, the house of representatives Tuesday night moved to send out and arrest absent members then blocked the effort by showing a quorum present.

Ensnared over a unanimous consent request to disagree with a committee report on a bill to regulate weights of trucks and buses, repeated efforts failed to boost a quorum vote. A motion to disagree finally prevailed by a vote of 54 to 27.

Several attempts were made to poll a quorum on motions to disagree in the face of repeated objections to the consent request by Representative H. B. ("Hell Bent") Edwards, of Lowndes, and Representative T. V. Williams, of Coffee.

Both Williams and Edwards upheld the committee report. After a prolonged parliamentary tangle settled no results, the two met in the center of the floor with arms and strolled for the door.

Some member demanded that the doors be closed but Edwards had taken leave before the demand was ordered carried out.

Representative Clements, of Wheeler, author of the disputed bill, moved for a "call of the house" and 51 members sustained the call. Only 15 votes were necessary to take this most drastic step embodied in rules of the lower branch of the assembly.

Rivers Warns Members.

"You are voting to send out and arrest the members who are absent," Speaker E. D. Rivers warned.

On the call, 100 members were recorded as present, blocking further action. Throughout the late afternoon session Rivers had warned the house he would order a call unless members remained in the hall.

The weights bill, saying how much tonnage a truck and bus may carry on the public highways in Georgia, was placed before the house for further action.

The lieutenant governor's bill is an enabling act to the constitutional amendment proposed earlier in the session creating this office and making him the presiding officer of the senate.

Clark Howell Is Invited To Address Legislature

By unanimous consent the house Tuesday asked Clark Howell Sr., editor of The Constitution, to address that body at some future date on the subject of aviation.

Mr. Howell recently completed a nation-wide study of aviation as chairman of President Roosevelt's aviation commission.

A resolution inviting Chase S. Osborn, former governor of Michigan and part-time resident of Georgia, to address the house also was adopted Tuesday. It was sponsored by Representatives Darden and Sabados, of Dougherty; Bradley, of Tattall; Jackson, of Bleckley; Patten, of Tift, and Henderson.

able way of acquiring any tax relief in the present session.

Sensors Johnson, of Royston; Smith, of Columbus, and Skelton, of Hartwell, were among those speaking against the substitute which was finally passed. Johnson voted for the measure, however.

Dennis Speaks Against Bill.

Senator Dennis, of Eatonton, one of the six opposing the measure, spoke against it also. He said it was too drastic and added "you will never get the taxes of Georgia straightened out again."

Senator Smith, of Columbus, said he was opposed to the measure because it "made a sales tax the only alternative. And I am utterly opposed to the ingenuous sales tax." Senator Vaughn, of Conyers, replied that there were features of the substitute which he did not like, but that he thought it wise to open the way for adoption of a sales tax.

Before voting on final passage of the substitute, the senate voted, 43 to 5, to approve the substitute as amended.

The measure was ordered transmitted immediately to the house.

That the senate is confident that some relief proposal will be submitted to the people but no substitute taxes will be levied during the current session was shown after the action to the limitation proposal and the personal property exemption plan, when it was voted a bill providing for the appointment of a joint house and senate committee of seven members to study various forms of taxation and draft new legislation to be submitted either to the present legislature when and if it is called into special session or to the 1937 general assembly.

Bill Described as Necessary.

Introduced by Senators Lester, of Augusta, and McGinty, of Chatsworth, the bill was described as being necessary if Georgia's tax system is to be revised.

Speaking for the measure, Lester said that "we all realize that by voting a 10-mill limitation on ad valorem taxes and $300 exemption on personal property taxes today, the senate has opened the way for complete tax revision."

"It is therefore necessary to make a study of local, county and state government units, to determine where their functions overlap and to arrive at methods and means of promoting economy in government. We must revise the functions of local government if our tax system is revised."

The committee would be made up of seven members, two appointed by the senate president, two by the speaker of the house and three by the governor. Lester explained these commitments would have the power to make a complete study of all governmental functions and all forms of taxation. It would report back to the governor before July 1, 1936.

Skelton Amendment Accepted.

Before passing the bill 29 to 0 the senate accepted an amendment by Senator Skelton, of Hartwell, which would authorize the governor to pay actual expenses of the investigators from any funds at his disposal.

Sensors Simmons, of Bainbridge, and Skelton spoke for the measure. It was ordered transmitted to the house immediately.

The senate was in high gear throughout the day, passing numerous local and uncontested measures, and receiving a ruling from its president that house efforts to "instruct" Governor Thomas when he should pay $1,600,000 in school funds "unconstitutional, improper and out of order."

The senate president so ruled when the house measure, adopted Monday, was brought up for senate action.

"This resolution is clearly an effort on the part of the legislative branch to encroach upon the executive by instructing the governor to do certain things within 48 hours, and is therefore unconstitutional, improper and out of order, and I so rule."

Part of $2,000,000 Diverted.

The $1,600,000 referred to in the house resolution is part of some $2,000,000 diverted from the highway department earlier in the session for payment of back pensions to Confederate veterans and back appropriations to the schools. The veterans already have received their checks.

The senate sent back to committee a constitutional amendment by Senators Lester, of Augusta, and Scott, of Thomasville, which would write the "grandfather clause" into the constitution. This clause enables the governor to scale down appropriations to remain within the state's income.

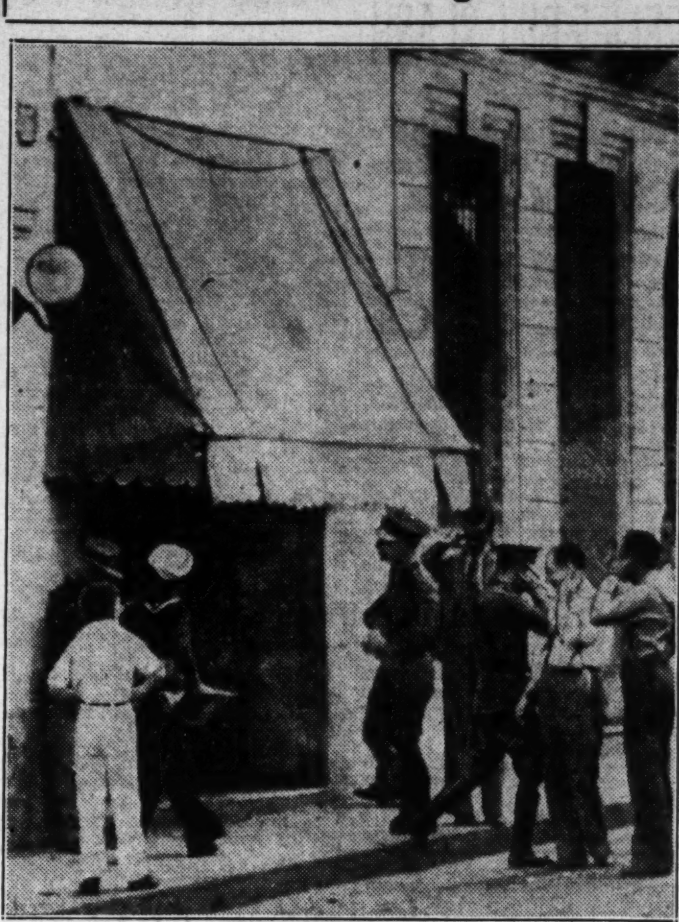

Other senate action included approval of a bill by Senators Lester and McGinty, providing for a commission of seven members, two senators, two representatives, and three appointed by the governor to study local, state and county government and draft legislation aiming toward greater economy. Lester said such a survey was necessary if Georgia's tax system is to be revised.

sition behind the Rivers exemption plan, that the senate will stick to the governor's limitation proposal and nothing will happen at this session. In that event the entire tax tangle will become a dominant issue in the 1936 campaign for governor. Speaker Rivers is openly a candidate and the friends of Senate President Charles D. Redwine are saying that he'll be in the race.

After substituting the limitation plan for the exemption plan the senate took up and adopted without a dissenting vote a substitute for Speaker Rivers' plan to exempt $200 worth of personal property from taxation, the substitute fixing the exemption on personal property at $300. Later Senator James H. Skelton, of Hartwell, moved that the senate reconsider this action "in order for some legal phases of it to be worked out." And again without a dissenting vote the reconsideration was voted, and the proposal, a constitutional amendment, went back to committee.

The limitation plan was voted in the shape of a substitute for the Rivers proposal, the substitute being sponsored by Senator Pope, of Lyons, and Senator Rawlins, of McRae, the action coming after an extended debate.

Roll Call on Substitute.

The roll call vote on the substitute bill was as follows: For the bill—Senators Almon, Beasley, Cannon, Carrington, Chappell, Clark, Cooper, Crawford, Darden, Dickerson, Duncan, Edenfield, Gary, Gaskins, Goodwin, Harden, Hart, Holt, Johnson, Johnston, Jones, Kiker, King, Kirkland, Lancaster, Lester, McKel, McGinty, McLeod, McWhorter, Millhollin, Pope, Reagan, Rawlins, Rucker, Scott, Simmons, Strickland, Thomas, Turner, Vaughn and Wright.

Those opposed—Atkinson, Dennis, Larsen, Millican, Skelton and Smith. Constitutional majority of 24 votes was needed to adopt the substitute.

The proposed substitute was offered in the senate several days ago by Senator Pope. In original form it provided for elimination of all ad valorem taxation and opened the way for complete revision of Georgia's tax system.

The Rivers resolution providing a $5,000 exemption and the Pope substitute were defeated early last week, but both were ordered reconsidered. Debate on the measures was postponed on Thursday until Tuesday.

Chappell-Larsen Amendment.

The 10-mill limitation for state, county, city and school ad valorem taxes was added to the substitute in the form of an amendment by Senators Chappell and Larsen. Larsen then voted against his own amendment when the substitute was up for final passage. He did not explain his reasons for voting "no."

Before taking the final vote, the senators defeated a substitute for the original Rivers bill which would have fixed the ad valorem limitation at 15 mills and would have exempted the homestead of the head of a family up to $1,500 valuation. This substitute was beaten, 8 to 32. It was introduced by Senators Beasley, of Glenville, and Larsen, of Dublin. Larsen explained off the floor that he put his name on the Beasley substitute "to see where we stand."

ROGERS FOOD SHOW TO OPEN THURSDAY

Three-Story Building Transformed Into Fair- land for Big Exhibition

With the formal opening of Rogers Food Show and exhibition less than 36 hours away, literally scores of workers will be busy today and Thursday moving in the countless displays that will feature the show and getting everything in readiness for the grand curtain raising at 7 o'clock Thursday evening.

The show, featuring more than 150 exhibits, a dozen vaudeville acts and numerous novelty entertainers, will officially open its doors at 7 o'clock Thursday night. Thereafter, it will be open each afternoon and evening, except Sunday, until March 23.

The three-story building at 230 Spring street, which will house the show, has been transformed into a fairland by skilled decorators and the thousands who pass through the building during the next 10 days will find it by far eclipses any similar attraction ever staged in the southeast.

John W. Gates, show director, who has been working almost 20 hours a day for the past week getting everything in readiness for the spectacle, announced Tuesday that everything will be in place by the next 10 days.

"The show this year will be the greatest Rogers Store has ever staged, and its value as an educational feature is incalculable," he said.

Mr. Gates declared, "The exhibits on the third floor alone, sponsored by more than a hundred of the nation's leading food manufacturers, will be worth coming miles to see, yet they constitute only part of the show itself."

"I have concentrated on providing a really all-star vaudeville program for each afternoon and evening, and I believe I have succeeded," he said.

Swiss Alpine Yodelers alone would be enough to attract music lovers, but in addition to the yodelers have such stars as Marie Underwood and his Billmore radio orchestra, Betty Elliott, the Parent-Teacher Association "kitchen orchestra," Evelyn Day and Marion Rosenberg, to mention only some of them.

In addition to the regular vaudeville program, there will be other entertainment and programs of educational nature, including the nation's Motor Company's Kiddie Revue, the Georgia Power Company's cooking school and scores of demonstrations by other exhibitors.

TORNADIC WINDS LASH AT GEORGIA

rain was reported to have fallen in Macon in a few minutes.

Stormy Weather Expected.

The Atlanta weather bureau said the stormy weather had been expected, since it had been advancing from Texas and Louisiana for the last two days. The bureau predicted that the bad weather would be short-lived. A "cool" wave which came into the state from the west this afternoon should cover all Georgia by today, it forecast, bringing with its widespread frost and clear skies.

At Macon, Edward Jackson, a mechanic, suffered a concussion of the brain in a 20-foot fall from his garage as he tried to reinforce a sign against the high wind. Signs were blown down across several highways near Macon.

Reports from other sections of the state Tuesday were as follows:

Albany—Strong winds blew limbs from several trees, but caused no further damage. Rains stopped shortly after noon and skies cleared. Temperature falling rapidly.

Thomasville—Moderately strong winds in morning caused no damage. Heavy rains stopped in afternoon, and skies gradually cleared.

Athens—Hard rains fell during morning, but winds were not sufficiently strong to cause damage.

CAIRO—Severe winds and rains swept over the section damaging power and communication lines. Services, however, were quickly restored. Slight damage was done buildings in Cairo.

SNOW, SLEET AND FLOODS

MENACE JACKSON, MISS. AREA

JACKSON, Miss., March 12.—(AP)

Racing eastward today across the Gulf states from Texas, a freakish, ice-laden atmospheric disturbance dropped in tornado force in Mississippi and left a cold wave with snow and sleet on top of the flood menace centering around Jackson.

Pontotoc, a thriving little north Mississippi town of about 2,500 population, was struck last night by an arm of the disturbance which caused tornado damage estimated at more than $100,000, centering largely in the business section.

No lives were lost at Pontotoc, but three persons were injured and more than a score of business houses and homes of the town were either destroyed or damaged by the strong wind.

A 60-mile-an-hour wind blew into Pontotoc from the northwest and tore a mile-long path through the east side of the business section about 8 o'clock.

It left a mantle of snow and ice with lowering temperatures which today interfered with a survey of the damage.

Schools were closed today and citizens set about removing the debris in the storm-torn town while other sections were fighting high waters.

507 FRANCHISE ROAD (The Franchise Booked Car to Franchise Ave.)

Text of Roosevelt Message

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP) The text of President Roosevelt's message to congress urging control of public utilities is as follows:

To the congress of the United States:

I am transmitting to you herewith a report submitted to me by the national power policy committee, I named this committee last summer from among the departments of the government concerned with power problems to make a series of reports to co-ordinate government policy on such problems.

This report I am submitting to you is the recommendation of the committee with respect to the treatment of holding companies in the public utility field. It deserves the careful attention of every member of the congress.

The so-called public utility holding company bill (Title I of the house bill 5423 and senate bill 1725) which was drafted under the direction of congressional leaders, incorporates many of the recommendations of this report.

I have been watching with great interest the fight being waged against public utility holding company legislation. I have watched the use of investors' money to make the investor believe that the efforts of government to protect him are designed to defraud him. I have seen much of the propaganda prepared against such legislation even down to mimeographed sheets of instructions for propaganda to exploit the most far-fetched and fallacious fears. I have seen enough to be as unimpressed by it as I was by the similar effort to stop the country against the securities exchange bill last spring.

The securities exchange act is now generally accepted as a constructive measure, and I feel confident that any fears now entertained in regard to proposed utility holding company legislation will prove as groundless as those last spring in the case of the securities exchange act.

PROTECTION FOR INVESTOR.

So much has been said through chain letters and circulars and by word of mouth that misrepresents the intent and purpose of a new law that it is important that the people be told the actual facts of the case.

Such a measure will not destroy legitimate business or wholesome and productive investment. It will not destroy a penny of actual value of those operating properties which holding companies now control and which holding company securities represent in so far as they have any value. On the contrary, it will surround the necessary reorganization of the holding company with safeguards which will in fact protect the investor.

We seek to establish the sound principle that the utility holding company so long as it is permitted to continue should not profit from dealing with subsidiaries and affiliates where there is no semblance of actual bargaining to get the best value and the best price. If a management company is equipped to offer a genuinely economic management service to the smaller operating utility companies it ought not to own stock in the companies it manages, and its fees ought to be reasonable. The holding company should not be permitted to establish a sphere of influence from which independent engineering, construction and other private enterprise is excluded by a none too benevolent private paternalism. If a management company is controlled by related operating companies it should be organized on a truly mutual and co-operative basis and should be required to perform its services at actual cost demonstrably lower than the services can be obtained in a free and open market.

We do not seek to prevent the legitimate diversification of investment in operating utility companies by legitimate investment companies. But the holding company in the past has confused the function of control and management with that of investment and in consequence has more frequently than not failed in both functions. Possibly some holding companies may be able to divest themselves of the control of their present subsidiaries and become investment trusts. But an investment company ceases to be an investment company when it embarks into business and management. Investment judgment requires the judicious appraisal of other people's management.

CHANCE FOR SURVIVAL.

The disappearance at the end of five years of those utility holding companies which can not justify themselves as necessary to the functioning of the operating utility companies of the country is an objective which congressional leaders I have success against the essential and far-sighted treatment of the evils of public utility holding companies.

For practical reasons we should offer a chance of survival to those holding companies which can prove to the securities and exchange commission that their existence is necessary for the achievement of the public ends which the holding company function in which private utility companies are supposed to serve. For such companies, and during the interim period for other companies, the proposal for a comprehensive plan of public regulation and control is sound.

But where the utility holding company does not perform a demonstrable function in the public utility industry and is used simply as a means of financial control, it is idle to talk of the continuation of holding companies on the assumption that regulation can protect the public against them. Regulation has small chance of ultimate success against the kind of concentrated wealth and economic power which holding companies have shown the ability to acquire in the utility field.

No government can be expected to carry out effective, continuous and intricate regulation of the kind of private empires within the nation which the holding company has proved capable of creating.

Except where it is absolutely necessary to the continued functioning of a geographically integrated operating utility system the utility holding company with its present powers must go. If we could remake our financial history in the light of experience certainly we would have none of this holding company business. It is a device which does not belong to our American traditions of law and business. It is only a comparatively late innovation. It dates definitely from the same unfortunate period which marked the beginnings of a host of other laxities in our corporate law which have brought us our present disgraceful condition of competitive charter-mongering between our states.

And it offers too well-demonstrated temptation to and facility for abuse to be tolerated as a recognized business institution. That temptation and that facility are inherent in its very nature. It is a corporate invention which can give a few corporate insiders unwarranted and intolerable powers over other people's money. In its destruction of local control and its substitution of absentee management it has built up in the public utility field what has justly been called a system of private socialism which is inimical to the welfare of a free people.

Most of us agree that we should take the control and the benefits of the essentially local operating utility industry out of a few financial centers and give back that control and those benefits to the localities which produce the business and create the effort to stir up the country against the securities exchange bill last fall.

The projected bill, the president contended, would not destroy "a penny of actual value of those operating properties which holding companies can prove to the securities and exchange commission that their existence is necessary for the achievement of the public ends which the holding company function in which private utility companies are supposed to serve. For such companies, and during the interim period for other companies, the proposal for a comprehensive plan of public regulation and control is sound."

"On the contrary," he added, "it will surround the necessary reorganization of the holding company with safeguards which will in fact protect the investor."

The president sketched a pattern for the holding company which might be allowed to remain in existence. It called for the holding company not to profit from dealings with subsidiaries and affiliates in which there was no actual bargaining; reasonable fees for management; no control over engineering, construction and other enterprises from dealings with these subsidiaries.

"For practical reasons we should offer a chance of survival to those holding companies which can prove to the securities and exchange commission that their existence is necessary for the achievement of public ends which the holding company function in which private utility companies are supposed to serve," he said.

"For such companies and during the interim period for other companies, the proposal for a comprehensive plan of public regulation and control is sound."

wealth. We can properly favor economically independent business, which stands on its own feet and diffuses power and responsibility among the many, and frowns upon those holding companies which through interlocking directorates and other devices have given tyrannical power and exclusive opportunity to a favored few. It is time to make an effort to reverse that process of the concentration of power which has made most American citizens, once traditionally independent owners of their own businesses, helpless devices such as holding companies, have taken for themselves unwarranted economic power. I am against private socialism of concentrated private power as thoroughly as I am against governmental socialism. The one is equally as dangerous as the other, and destruction of private socialism is utterly essential to avoid governmental socialism.

SMITH PREDICTS 12c COTTON LOAN WILL BE RENEWED

and probably more—cotton had been accumulated for the granary experiment.

As of March 8 the Commodity Credit Corporation and private banks had loans of 12 cents per pound on 4,077,417 bales of cotton from the 1934 crop involving an outlay of $248,006,420. Ten cent loans were outstanding on 40,509 bales of the 1933 crop involving $1,857,805.

In addition, the cotton producers' pool of the AAA had 1,373,659 left over from the Hoover administration.

These constituted total holdings of prospective holdings by the government of 5,931,585 bales of cotton out of the total of 11,001,000 bales now in the United States. Nevertheless, officials said, the present price slump was due to "technical weakness" of the market and speculative activity.

Cotton was the first commodity which the AAA took up in its vast production adjustment plans and some officials concede it is now running into difficulties. The present carry-over is about 3,500,000 bales in excess of normal despite the shortest cotton crop in many years in 1934.

Secretary Wallace and Davis were holding the ever-normal granary bills in reserve and may be forced to try it out on cotton.

Under this proposal, cotton which may come into the Commodity Credit Corporation's hands if outstanding loans are not paid would be purchased by the AAA from its processing tax funds and it would be returned to the producer as a "payment in kind" for a more drastic cut in production in 1935.

DECLINE IS HALTED IN COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP)—Although cotton snapped out of its headlong fall, price averages for stocks and sensitive commodities today touched new 1935 lows.

Trading on the New York Cotton Exchange was swept through wide swings ending with the futures market 5 cents higher to 35 cents lower in contrast to net losses yesterday of $4.50 to $5.95 a bale.

On the New York Stock Exchange, equities lost from $1 to $3 a share, and bonds weakened under almost universal pressure on the downside.

Grain prices in Chicago, apparently taking a cue from New York cotton, closed with narrow ranges.

A clear indication of the stock market trend was given by the Associated Press average for 60 stocks which was off 0.5 at 35.2, a new low for 1935.

This weakness was attributed in some measure to action of the cotton market but also, according to brokers, to a growing belief in Wall Street that spring business prospects give little ground for hope of further striking progress in business recovery.

Sterling Weak.

A contributing factor was the renewed weakness of sterling carrying almost all other currencies down.

President Roosevelt's speech stressing that utility holding companies "must go," except in cases where they are proven to be necessary, apparently had been anticipated. Utility stocks lost less than the average decline, but utility bonds were off along with the rest of that market.

The general falling trend was emphasized in Moody's Index of 15 principal sensitive commodities which hit a 1935 low at 192.8, based on December 31, 1931, as 100. This index, however, kept well above the 1934 low point.

Leading authorities in the cotton market explained yesterday's reaction and today's recovery in terms of technical market conditions.

One expert pointed out that of the 10,500,000 bales of cotton in the United States, about 5,000,000 were not held by growers, between 3,500,000 and 4,000,000 bales were held under the government 12-cent loan agreement, and about 1,500,000 bales were in the producers' pool, cotton held by the government on behalf of growers who have options on it.

Demand Dwindling.

That, he explained, meant there were 5,000,000 bales on which overseas risked losses unprotected. Demand for raw cotton by foreign and domestic mills has been declining recently, it was shown, and the strength of demand dwindling.

Selling brought the price close to 12 cents a pound and when it went under that point there was a deluge of selling to prevent losses by those who were convinced the government through its loan program was not pegging cotton at 12 cents a pound.

Because of the wide belief that cotton would not go under 12 cents, it was shown, there was little, if any, previous short selling, and when the 12-cent point was passed there was no short covering (buying back to make delivery or cancel contracts), which would cushion the fall of the market.

Trend Reversed.

It was only when cotton had touched almost record lows in the futures market that the trading element came in with buying orders, authorities explained, and reversed the down trend.

Some traders believe the cotton market may lose all faith in the government loan program to stabilize prices around the 12-cent level, and those traders say the price in the future will be fixed solely by supply and demand.

Reports by the International Cotton Federation for the first six months of this season that world consumption of American cotton was nearly 1,000,000 bales under the last season occasioned no surprise in the market.

Some traders said that domestic and foreign mills will not come into the market with volume buying until some assurance is extended that an artificially high price level will not be maintained.

CONTINUATION URGED FOR 12-CENT COTTON LOAN

MOULTRIE, Ga., March 12.—(AP)

Continuation for next season of the government's 12-cent loan on cotton was urged today by W. J. Vereen, of Moultrie, former president of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association.

In a telegram to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, in Washington, Vereen, a textile manufacturer, said continuation of the loan is "as important to millions of people as the government support of its bonds."

If the cotton loans are continued, Vereen said, the confidence of the people in the government's willingness to maintain fair price levels would be bolstered.

The manufacturer condemned "the raid on cotton and other commodity markets Monday," saying it "indicates that selfish and speculative interests do not think the farmer deserves a fair return for his labor."

He said that the "raid" came in the face of President Roosevelt's recent statement that commodity prices have not reached the levels desired.

"There is no better security than cotton," Vereen's telegram said. "Today's cotton will spin as well as a hundred years from today as it will tomorrow. It needs government support while methods of distribution now being worked out can lift consumption to production."

Vereen said he also sent copies of the wire to the president, to Senator Ed Smith, chairman of the senate agricultural committee, and to Representative Marvin Jones, chairman of the house agricultural committee.

Vereen long has been associated with cotton interests in the south. He now is a member of the executive committee of the department of commerce's business advisory and planning council.

French Delay Action On Arms Increases

PARIS, March 12.—(AP)—A heated controversy in the French cabinet over increased military service to answer German rearmament ended today as Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin agreed to compromise on procedure.

After voting to increase the period of compulsory military service from one year to two, the cabinet decided to withhold presentation of the bill to parliament until after municipal elections May 5.

Thus left wing deputies who previously, under socialist leadership, had been outspoken in their criticism of the increase will be saved the embarrassment of voting on the measure until after the approaching elections.

CUBA BOILS AGAIN

The latest wave of terror to grip Cuba, accompanied, as in the case of former uprisings, by killings, bombings and sabotage, again emphasizes the difficulty experienced by the people of the island republic in maintaining a stable government.

The career of the island since it was freed by the United States from Spanish oppression has been a stormy one. Discontent and violence have increased through the years in ratio with the withdrawal of this country from dominating influence over island affairs.

For the past two or three years conditions have gone steadily from bad to worse, with one government succeeding another.

Evidently we made a mistake in not annexing Cuba after the Spanish-American War. We should have taken it instead of the Philippines.

Following the war, American occupation was the haven that started the new republic on the way to prosperity. When the army was withdrawn the Platt amendment to the Cuban constitution remained as a constant reminder to the restless Cubans that they must keep the peace or Uncle Sam would step in. In the meantime, American dollars built railroads and highways, developed industries and financed public service.

With the withdrawal of the Platt amendment things have grown steadily worse, and intervention may become necessary to save Cuba from herself, as it was to save her from Spain.

From the standpoint of the best interests of Cuba, the fine gesture of the United States in presenting the people of the island with their freedom was a mistake.

A NEW INTERNATIONAL BODY

The plan for an international economic commission evolved at the 10-power conference that has just completed its deliberations in London is an interesting suggestion and points the way to the creation of a body that, properly directed, could undoubtedly render outstanding service in enabling the great powers to solve problems affecting the welfare of all nations.

The chief duty of the proposed commission would be to "make a comprehensive and exhaustive survey of international economic relations to the end that a better understanding of these relations by the people of the world may be promoted."

Such information, carefully and impartially gathered and digested, would be of invaluable aid in making it possible for all nations to co-operate intelligently in seeking a solution of problems of world-wide nature.

Most of the troubles of the world, even in normal times, arise out of economic conditions and the trade aspirations of the larger nations. Generally such information as is broadcast by individual governments is incomplete and prepared for selfish purposes.

With the existence of a source from which reliable and impartial information could be sought, or from which it could be distributed, most of the misunderstandings now existing could be cleared away. Potentially the proposed commission offers far more effective service to the maintenance of world peace than the League of Nations with its intricate machinery and inability to enforce its edicts.

The Abyssinian Problem.

Here in Africa every military man and every civil administrator is asking you what about Abyssinia. Is it going to be war with Italy or what? And my answer is: Ultimately it will be war. To anyone who has followed the evolution of Italo-Abyssinian relations for the last 50 years, a clash between the two states seems inevitable in the end. Italy has attacked Abyssinia several times before and the present Italian colonies of Somalia and Ethiopia are nothing else but land nibbled away from the Ethiopian empire, the official name of Abyssinia.

It was, for instance, the battle of Adowa in 1896, when the Italian army, under a marshal, whose name escapes me for the minute, I think it was Batiato, suffered a terrible defeat at the hands of the Emperor Menelik. Fifteen thousand Italians were left on the field and Menelik, who followed up his advantage, would have driven the Italians into the Indian ocean, but instead went home to Addis Ababa to celebrate the victory. The curious part about the recent border incidents is that the places where they took place lie a full 100 kilometers inside Abyssinian territory, which is, of course, the fact that Abyssinia is already invaded.

The agreement between Signor Mussolini and M. Pierre Laval, signed in Rome on January 3, stipulates that Italy is to have 20 per cent of the shares in the joint stock of the only Abyssinian railway, which runs from the capital, Addis Ababa, to Djibouti in French Somaliland. Now France may hand over these shares and Mussolini may think that this is a good thing, but the Abyssinian people, the negus, or emperor, of Abyssinia, has notified the League of Nations that he cannot tolerate Italian operation of the railway.

This is a perfectly legitimate declaration, because Abyssinia is a sovereign state and a member of the League in the bargain. Of course that refusal to accord Italy a share in the operation of the railway is taken as an affront and it should be observed in this connection that the border incidents, of which there have been several bloody ones, occurred immediately after that refusal. The policy of past Italian governments was to turn Abyssinia into an Italian protectorate. Under the present administration Italy actually got that far, but since that time the whole arrangement has lapsed.

Whether Italy will now succeed in imposing her will on the negus, or whether Ethiopia or bending the negus to its will, remains to be seen.

Dangerous Tension.
Italy has been shipping troops and equipment to Ethiopia since last September. Italy therefore expected something to happen long ago. Those border incidents did not come as a surprise. Personally, I am inclined to believe that Signor Mussolini would probably force the issue before spring. The border incidents are to turn the negus into a puppet state and perhaps for an attack. It was not very difficult to provoke them. On the other hand Abyssinia is also a puppet state. She has imported 100 assault cars from Sweden, according to information I gathered from British officers on the Italian frontier. Italy and her men are under arms in Abyssinia and nearly a million women. At that they may not prove a match for the negus, but Italy has a half in the pockets of Ethiopia and if it comes to hostilities I intend to take service with him for a while, leaving journalism alone until another day.

Increased activity by the police department during recent weeks has resulted in the arrest of a number of men, but the safe-crackers continue to be an almost nightly affair. Nobody knows where the criminals will strike next, and so the safety of the life and property of every person in the community is at stake.

There must be a still more determined effort by the police to clean out the criminal gangs responsible for these outrages; the courts must deal quickly and sternly with those found guilty; and once on the chain gang they must be permitted to stay there.

The police and the courts must put would-be safe-crackers on notice that when they forcibly enter a store they are taking the first step to a long sentence on the gang. The boldness with which crime of every nature is being committed in every section of the city is a challenge from the underworld that must be met with a concerted drive by every law-enforcement agency of the community. In no other way can safety for lives and property be assured.

The advantage in thinking yourself as good as anybody is that you no longer wish to snub or vilify your betters.

An aggressor nation is one that strikes first. That is, it strikes you as too weak to defend something you want.

Duelling is forbidden, but you can get mad at a stranger and hold 70 per cent of the pavement with similar results.

"The house-wrecker," says a trade paper, "must offer an attractive figure." This is also true of the home-wrecker.

The age of discretion is the one when you begin to realize that nobody ever calls you on the phone to give you anything.

Nations, unfortunately, are like men. The only thing that makes them pacifists is the realization that they are easy to lick.

You don't add to a man's dignity by calling him mister. Think of saying "Mr. Julius Caesar" or "Mr. George Washington."

Queer world. How quickly the people would rise and wipe out invaders who did as much harm as professional criminals do.

Another place where important people like to live is just inside the law.

The Nazis burn the books instead of just hiding them until the investigation is finished.

At last the middle class is defined. It is the one that earns enough to pay income tax and hasn't enough influence to dodge it.

Heaven, for a lot of people, will be a place full of private affairs for them to meddle in.

BASHFUL AND SELF-CONSCIOUS
Please send me a pamphlet on inferiority complex, writes a young woman. I am bashful. I do not know how to carry on a conversation with anyone I don't know very well or with an older person. I feel self-conscious. My friends say I am foolish for other three or four times a week. My friends say it is foolish for an 18-year-old girl to spend so many evenings with a fellow. I do not know how to marry in a few years. Do you advise me to keep steady company with him for three or four years? I have been told to go to the hospital, but I have no desire for other dates.

I have no pamphlet on inferiority complex. Almost all persons have such complex, together with a dash of superiority complex. To discuss these feelings in the abstract may make interesting paragraphs, but I can't tell where such morbid introspection helps the victim of self-consciousness. On the contrary I believe this quick psychology is usually harmful to the untutored layman, as harmful as the more familiar old "doctor books," almanacs and p. m. testimonials were to the simple suckers of yesterday.

Not being gifted with second sight, of course I don't know, but in reading this girl's letter I feel that I am in the shoes of the fabled hero of narrow existence. Sounds rather silly and dumb, doesn't it, the way her hectic work is marked by the words "I am bashful" and "I am self-conscious"? If the affair purports to be normal and serious, can you conceive 50 years of the same as sentimental as it is safe for a man to be. I can even remember when I was 19 and won from a piping a gorgeous striped necktie on the night of the "Young Man," he counseled, "there'll be plenty of time for this billing and cooing when you're finished your medical school."

To this girl, and to thousands of other young persons with a similar difficulty, I recommend the public library. Not as a convenient place for "dates" but as a fine school of a larger life. Visit the library and all the libraries that have good books, done much serious reading but would like to begin, and you would like some advice or suggestions as to what to read. Read the books, and you will find that you will enjoy and profit by. Nor should you feel embarrassed about approaching the librarian in this way. I have done so scores of times and hope to do so many more times. I learned the habit by observing some pretty important people consulting the library in just that way.

EAGLE REMOVED FROM S. C. FIRM
WASHINGTON, March 12.—(P)—The NRA today announced it has deprived the Loria Cotton Mills, of Clinton, S. C., of the right to use the Blue Eagle.

Failure of the company to reinstate 16 union workers after the textile strike which ended last September 22, was given as the reason for the NRA action.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(P)—The federal government's prison population is on the increase notwithstanding the repeal of the liquor laws. Stanford Bates, director of the bureau of prisons, blamed this situation, in testifying at a recent hearing of the house appropriations committee, for the bureau's inability to give an annex to Fort Leavenworth (Kan.) penitentiary where 1,935 prisoners now are housed. The annex is war department property.

Bates said the New Orleans, La., federal jail recently reported it "had never had as many arrests for illegal liquor as they had that month."

"That is one of the surprises that has confronted the committee, as well as the department of justice—the rapid increase in the number of prisoners since the repeal of the eighteenth amendment," said Representative Oliver, democrat, Alabama.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon

OLD SAW WASHINGTON, March 12.—There seems to be confusion about Mr. Morgenstern's new gold profit trick.

The New Deal's severest monetary critic, Senator Thomas, leaped from his seat to cheer it. Apparently he thought it was the old paper stunt in which the magician tears up a small piece of paper and then throws out buckets full of confetti money.

The conservative critics applauded it just as much, on the opposite assumption that it was the old illusion trick designed to make the inflationists believe they see money which isn't.

Those who have studied New Deal ledgerism from a less partisan standpoint were inclined to believe it was neither. They knew very well that it was the old girl-sawing act. Mr. Morgenstern was merely cutting the gold girl up without hurting her.

Those who have studied New Deal ledgerism from a less partisan standpoint were inclined to believe it was neither. They knew very well that it was the old girl-sawing act. Mr. Morgenstern was merely cutting the gold girl up without hurting her.

TIP The confusion seems to have resulted at least partially from the fact that Senator Thomas apparently was taken back-stage beforehand. Some of Mr. Morgenstern's assistants are supposed to have pointed out the inflationary possibilities. That is why Mr. Thomas was all ready with his applause as soon as the announcement was made.

The New Dealers are supposed to have especially desired such a reaction, not only to keep the inflationists in congress quiet, but to shake the stock market out of its sound sleep. The market has been snoozing lately in utter disregard of inflationary possibilities.

You may consider it highly significant that the market went right on snoozing the first day after hearing of the new trick and the Thomas cheer.

FRILLS The simple fact is that Mr. Morgenstern saved off $642,000,000 of his $2,812,000,000 gold profit and used it to retire that insignificant portion of the public debt. The rest of the hocus-pocus was all frill.

The most important frill was the further centralizing of money control in federal reserve by limiting the currency-issuing possibilities of national banks. The New Deal has been working for months toward a central bank in the federal reserve without designating it as such. This helped that cause along.

It is true some additional money could possibly be issued, and probably a little will be. But the currency angle of the thing is wholly show. You may be sure that the new issues, when and if made, will not be sufficient to cause monetary inflation.

The thing to remember is that the big share of Mr. Morgenstern's gold profit is tied up in the stabilization fund for more than a year yet. He will use it in a year so, just as he used the $642,000,000 portion of it, to retire debt. That has been expected from the beginning.

For the time being, the inflation of Senator Thomas is probably as important as any other inflation. That is what makes it a perfect trick.

BALM A confidential letter written by a cabinet officer is being sent around privately by New Dealers to some of the most influential business leaders. It contains eight pages (business letter size) of single-spaced typewritten conclusions calculated to clear up uncertainty rooted in some business minds.

While much of it is familiar New Deal argument, some portions of it offer more definite promises than the New Dealers have chosen to offer publicly. For instance, it assures businessmen that no new or additional federal taxes are now contemplated or likely to be proposed "unless some action of the congress, like the passage of a cash bonus, will necessitate" extra-budgetary expenditures.

WARNING The letter is marked "for information only and not for release or publication." It was originally written two months ago, but recently mimeographed copies have been made by the government for private distribution. One of the most important phases of it is its hint as to what to expect on New Deal labor policy.

"We may reasonably judge the future developments in constructive industrial regulation on the basis of Australia's demonstrated experience," it says. "Australia has applied the principle of industrial regulation by means of fixed wages and hours of work. The experience of 20 years shows that the code principle has not interfered with private initiative unduly and certainly has not ruined private businesses."

The cabinet officer says quite plainly that the scarcity doctrine of the AAA was "a temporary expedient." He says he sees no reason for any American citizen having the slightest fear that government competition is going to destroy good utility operations founded on real cash investments. He implies Mr. Roosevelt will veto the bonus and concludes with a significant warning that the president is trying to take economic forces in hand reasonably "before it is too late for the forces of reason to be effective."

NOTES A Canadian citizen is a member of the steel code authority under NRA, which may be a good thing as it is a general domestic citizen have not proved themselves efficient in that situation.

One reason why the oppressed NRA now is getting some sympathy from unexpected business quarters is that its death would probably cause adoption of the 30-hour week at this session of congress.

Lawyers associated with the income tax bureau under Andrew Mellon say he instructed them to resolve any doubtful cases involving his firms in favor of the government.

A city official appearing before NRA uttered this criticism which now is being widely quoted: "What used to be known as a combination in restraint of trade is now known as a code authority." (Copyright, 1935, by Paul Mallon.)

Love Offers the Last Crust of Bread, But Love Doesn't Accept It
—By Robert Quillen

The lovers in story books are always young, but few people so much as know the meaning of love until the mellowing years have brought them wisdom.

Much that is called love is nothing more than selfishness, and to give it the name of love is a sacrifice and a blasphemy.

Do you know the meaning and proof and chief characteristic of love? "God so loved the world that He gave —"

"Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life —"

Love gives. It is an unselfish and tender thoughtfulness, finding delight in service.

The young man in the story book does not say: "I love you and wish to serve you. I wish to marry you because I can give you so much more than you now have. It is your happiness and comfort and well-being that concerns me."

Never that, unless he is a prince talking to a dairy maid in a fairy tale. In real life, his profession of love means: "You fascinate and delight me and I long to possess you. Marriage may be a bad bargain for you, but I am thinking only of the happiness it will afford me."

True love is the generous and devoted comradeship of those who have shared joys and sorrows and learned to find their greatest happiness in serving one another.

It is wrong to give the name of love to self-gratifying possessiveness. "I love John so much that I can't bear to let him out of my sight," means: "I am so selfish that I cannot sacrifice my own pleasure to give him the liberty without which he is miserable."

"I love Mary so much that I cannot bear to see her talking to another man," means: "I am so selfish and thoughtless that I wish her to have no pleasure except the little I provide."

FUTURE NRA PLANS STIR CONTROVERSY

Divergent Views Held on How Many Codes Should Be Dropped.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—A difference of opinion in administration circles over how many codes should be dropped in revising NRA was indicated today by Donald Richberg in advising the senate finance committee to "do the big job and let the fringes wait."

Richberg expressed the personal view that a great many of the codes for service trades, with all their enforcement difficulties, could be dropped and still leave 75 per cent of the nation's workers under the Blue Eagle.

"But I want you to hear those who feel more strongly than I do that there should be something done in this field," Richberg told the committee.

Chairman Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, asked for Richberg's personal views on which codes should be discarded after the committee had tried for four days to get a specific list from the director of the national emergency council who appeared as a spokesman for the administration.

Richberg said he would not write into the law which industries should be regulated and which should not, but would draw the line by a definition of interstate commerce that would "stand up" in the courts.

Submits List.

He submitted a list of 17 service trade codes, covering about 3,000,000 employees, which he said had brought most of the enforcement difficulties. He added, however, that these groups included some of the worst employment conditions.

The bigger industries in the list were barber shops, laundries, cleaning and dyeing, hotels and restaurants, motor vehicle storage, advertising,

ARREST OF BRITON AS RED ORDERED

Author E. J. Strachey To Face Possible Depor- tation From Country.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—The government tonight ordered the arrest of Evelyn John Strachey, British author, on the claim that he had entered the United States "by means of false and misleading statements" and since arriving here had "declared himself to be a communist."

The federal bureau of immigration announced that the circumstances it mentioned rendered Strachey "mandatorily deportable under the immigration laws."

Because of the prominence of the British author many observers here at once considered that the projected arrest might grow into an international incident.

Colonel D. W. McCormack, immigration commissioner, announced in a formal statement that a warrant had been issued and that his agents in Chicago planned to serve it on Strachey tonight at Glenview, Ill., a suburb, where the author was scheduled to lecture on entry.

UNCLE SAYS REYNOLDS OPPOSED PAYING ANNE

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., March 12.—(AP)—Smith Reynolds' reported opposition to his first wife or her child receiving any financial aid from him was brought into the court battle over disposition of his tobacco millions today, along with the assertion from W. N. Reynolds, his uncle, that he had an "absolute veto" against any claim.

In an affidavit filed in the hearing in Forsyth superior court before Judge Clayton Moore on a settlement proposal advanced by the Reynolds family, W. N. Reynolds said his nephew had strongly opposed making a pre-divorce settlement on his first wife, the former Anne Cannon, herself a textile fortune heiress.

The tobacco magnate and well-known trotting horse enthusiast said the agreement, which gave Ann and her daughter $1,000,000, was made only upon his insistence.

He did not disclose the nature of the "absolute defense" which he said young Reynolds had, but asserted that at the time the pre-divorce agreement was made the position his nephew had taken was omitted from the records of the agreement at the instance of A. L. Brooks, attorney for Mrs. Annie L. Cannon, mother of Anne.

In the present hearing, Reynolds' first wife who since her divorce from him has married and divorced P. Brandon Smith, of Charlotte, is opposing the distribution of Reynolds' estate proposed by his relatives and is seeking the entire fortune, estimated at $30,000,000, for her daughter, now four years old.

Libby Holman, Broadway actress who was Smith Reynolds' second wife, and all other possible claimants to the fortune except the first wife and her child have agreed to accept the proffered family settlement.

"Marie Galante" Brings New Star at Georgia

For those who seek thrills and a warning human story, the new Fox Film production, "Marie Galante," opens today at the Georgia theater with Ketti Gallian and Spencer Tracy co-starring.

Ketti Gallian, exotic and lovely importation from the European stage, makes her screen debut in "Marie Galante." Spencer Tracy, forceful and dynamic, plays opposite her as the young American who at first tracks her down as a spy suspect, then comes to her defense. Helen Morgan,

Ned Sparks, Siegfried Rumann and Arthur Byron have leading roles. Robert Lorraine, one of the best known stage stars in England, came to Hollywood especially to play the role of Ratcliffe. Leslie Fenton likewise has an important role and Jay C. Flippen, Stepin Fetchit and Tito Coral are seen in effective "bits."

"Marie Galante" has several song hits. "It's Home," "Song of a Dreamer" and "Service Me Right for Treating You Wrong" are especially melodious and striking.

The "Four Bars of Harmony" quartet continue their stay at the Georgia theater, singing the latest popular songs in satisfying way.

Venizelos, on Rebel Vessel, Flees to Italian Island

Author E. J. Strachey To Face Possible Depor- tation From Country.

ATHENS, March 12.—(AP)—Flery Eleutherios Venizelos, his 12-day insurrection against Premier Panagiotis Tsaldaris' government at an end, fled from his native Crete today to gain haven on the little Italian island of Cassos.

The cruiser Averoff, "flagship" of the rebel fleet, conveyed Venizelos, his wife and several other revolt chiefs to the 25-mile-square islet, and afterward radioed the government that it was continuing to Greece.

With Venizelos' flight and the smashing of the rebels' land forces in Macedonia, the government's victory apparently was complete.

By Kathleen Norris

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: Antonette Taft, 28, attractive and ambitious but unable to find a job she likes well enough to really try to hold, lives in a drab top-floor San Francisco flat with her sister Brenda and brother Cliff, and their Aunt Meg. On her job-hunting rounds, Tony meets Lawrence Bellamy, editor of the Journal of Commerce, who has only an academic offer. Despite her disappointment she likes him very much. Diffident Barker Kerr, who works with Cliff, drops in frequently and Brenda hopes Tony will marry him. But Tony says she doesn't love him. Charles Greenwood, city editor of the Call, has to discharge the editor and gives Tony a chance at $25 a week. She finds the men friendly and helpful. Bess Cutter, who gets $100 a week as a columnist, has an expensive apartment and Fitch, the managing editor, dines there almost nightly. Bess always brings in a bundle of notes which some one has to whip into shape and she comes into the office to see them. Tony suggests that they invite another man from the office to dine with them and Fitch, and they go to the theater. Tony is in a quandary. She decides to ask Barker's advice. He insists she must not be seen with such a woman as Bess Cutter and finds courage to tell Tony he loves her. Tony declines his proposal. She tells herself he is prudish and the Cutter affair and decides to go on with the story.

But I shouldn't think I'd be expected to go as a guest, would I?" "No, you wouldn't be a guest. But I think the old man would like you to mingle in with the glad throng, and get the lunch. Then if you have some time in the afternoon do part of the story—I'll see that you get a typewriter—and turn your stuff over to Hotchkiss; he's the cameraman who looks like Mussolini—he'll bring it in. Then you dress up and do the dinner and bring that in as soon as you can." "Take a 10 o'clock train, say?" "Oh, I'll have someone over there to bring you back. And you're a good sport!" "Why, I think it'll be fun!" Tony said.

Leaving home with her suitcase in the foggy soft morning, Tony had joined the newspaper group on the boat; Spike Illyan was in charge of the two cameramen and of the expedition generally.

They reached the clubhouse at 11: it was always thrilling to say "Press" to the authorities who would have hurried their way; it was especially gratifying today because great preparations had been made for the comfort of the press: there were tables of typewriters, and Miss Taft especially was to be considered. Mrs. Rogers had made arrangements for Miss Taft to rest at somebody's house in the afternoon and dress there.

"I could change right here at the club," Tony, finally, finding Mrs. Rogers in a whirl of directions and last duties, said coolly-naturally. "My dear, you'll do nothing of the kind. You're to go to the Patterson house—right near here, it looks over the ninth green—and get a hot bath and take everything comfortably." Little Mrs. Rogers protested in turn. "It's all turning out so beautifully," she exclaimed. "There never was anything like it."

"I'd just like to walk about and get my bearings first."

Tony strolled off, studying the details of the big raw new splendid place, mentally fitting them to phrases. The new clubhouse had been built on the site of the old one; the golf links were beautifully groomed and green; the roads took their old turnings. It was only the great main building that was new. It was all very novel, very exhilarating; it was more fun, Tony thought, to be a reporter and have a business reason for being here, than to be one of the many girls who as I've often approached, were gathering on the lawns and the porches, nervously discussing the subject of the dance tonight.

Others than girls were gathering too; men who shouted at other men, women whose costumes were like a fashion display, but the debutantes were Tony's special interest and she devoted herself especially to them. She knew them all now, which were popular and which were not, the rich ones and those whose mothers were having a desperate time trying to keep their social footing.

Tony slipped into the ballroom and looked at the decorated tables and the souvenirs and the name cards; she found the press and the Patterson house, and decorations and went out to the great screened piazza where luncheon was spread.

The day was sharply clear with a cold wind; women shivered in their gala sports attire and put on heavy coats while they lunched. But afterward the sports went well. Tony presided coolly at the Patterson house, and introduced herself as "the young lady from the Call," with a feeling that everything was right with the world.

A delightful home, the Pattersons', surrounded by a fine garden, with gray-shingled walls and dormers picked out with Quakerish white, and trimmed bare vines climbing up to the very roof-tops. Inside were the usual evidences of taste and wealth: floors carpeted to the baseboards, with a handsome rug here and there; books and flowers and colonial fiddle-backed chairs.

Mrs. Patterson was old, stout, in a gray silk dress that matched her curled short gray hair. She was in a sort of library beside a wood fire; her only companion was a woman of perhaps 40, apparently in delicate health.

"Come in, come in," Mrs. Patterson said as the maid ushered Tony to the door of the room. "This is my daughter, Mrs. Bellamy," said Mrs. Patterson. "We're all going to the party tonight, so we thought we'd rest a little now."

"How is it at the club?" the daughter asked.

"Exciting!" Tony said, smiling. "We just got through the sports when the fog began to come in."

"What are they doing now, Miss Taft?"

"Well, some of the men are playing golf, and they're still playing tennis. And a lot of them are playing on the bridge in the clubhouse and they're having tea and cocktails."

"And a fancy dress tonight?" Ruth Bellamy said shaking her head. "It's ridiculous! It's too much."

"Some of them are going back to smaller pea, or a tiny ball-bearing for Mercury, and the sun. What you ought to have is a ball about two and a half feet in diameter. A very large pumpkin might suggest the size of the sun; but this isn't the pumpkin season. Can you figure another way to obtain, or make, a ball which will stand for our wondrous sun?

If you want to put your solar system together, I can tell you how to space it, but I cannot give you the room.

Let Mercury be 108 feet from the sun. Venus 200 feet, the earth 276 feet, Mars 420 feet, Jupiter a quarter of a mile, Saturn half a mile, Uranus a mile, and Neptune a mile and two-thirds. Pluto should be farther away than Neptune, about two miles from the sun.

That would be a nice "little" model, wouldn't it?

You will have to cut down the distances to fit the space you have to use; but the figures will give you the general idea.

Our solar system also contains comets and planetoids, or little planets. Grains of sand, chiefly between Mars and Jupiter, could stand for the planetoids. If you put in a comet, give it a long tail!

There is no particular plant which is called the "Shamrock" by botanists. The word in Irish is "seamros," and refers to any plant with three leaflets. It has often been applied to watercress, although this plant is not trifoliate. It is said that St. Patrick once plucked a three-leafed clover and used it to explain the Trinity. On March 17 Irishmen and many others wear various clovers, white-flowered oxalis or wood sorrel or perhaps watercress—all of which are called "Shamrocks" for the wearers. Leading Atlanta Stars Enter South Atlantic States Tourney

GRANT TO GIVE AN EXHIBITION NEXT WEEK-END

Reese, Courts, Boland, Bobbitt To Compete at Augusta.

By Jack Troy.
Now if it wasn't for business... Bryan Grant would be off again next week to compete in the 26th south Atlantic states tennis tournament at Augusta, starting Wednesday.

It's business that will keep Bryan from playing more tennis this year than ever before. The old urge is stronger than ever because the Atlanta stay is playing perhaps the best tennis of his brilliant career.

There was a long-distance call from Augusta yesterday and Bryan was almost persuaded to break away and participate in the tournament. A compromise was effected, however, Bryan agreeing to be there either next Saturday or Sunday and play an exhibition match.

STARS TO COMPETE.

A number of outstanding Atlanta players will compete in the south Atlantic states tournament, which is being revived after five years of dormancy.

It has been quite a famous tournament in the past, usually being held when the Davis cup trials were staged in Augusta.

Billy Reese, captain of the Georgia Tech tennis; Marion Courts, state champion; Dr. Kels Boland, Russell Bobbitt and Marion (Champ) Reese, brother of Billy, are among the Atlanta net acers who will participate.

Sponsors of the meet are seeking a representative field, including Berkeley Bell, Lefty Bryan and others.

BRYAN MAY PLAY.

Should a number of noted players enter, Bryan Grant may still bid for a few days away from his insurance business and join in the fun. He really would like to play.

Grant is determined to make his greatest year. He definitely will play in the Houston invitation which precedes the Atlanta invitation here on April 8.

Grant Lines Up Stars for Invitation.

Bryan Grant accomplished a few other things than simply winning the annual tournament in a walk when he was in Bermuda recently.

He lined up such stars as Lefty Bryan, the erratic Chattanooga southpaw who ranks No. 2 in the south; Berkeley Bell, high-ranking national star; J. Gilbert Hall, and Dr. Eugene McCullough, of New York, for the Atlanta invitation on April 8 at the Baltimore Tennis Club. Billy Reese and Reg Fleet are the sponsors.

Grant defeated Hall in the finals at Bermuda, taking the championship in straight sets. So did he win the annual Miami-Baltimore tournament earlier in the season.

He won a straight-set victory over Berkeley Bell in the semifinals and then repeated this dose for Sidney Wood, the brilliant New Yorker, in the finals.

Grant was hopeful of meeting Bell in the finals at Bermuda, but Lefty Bryan, who is a house afire one day and a smoldering ember the next, took care of Bell early in the tournament.

Wilmer Allison is a certain entry for the invitation. Gene Mako and Donald Budge, the brilliant young California players, will compete if they come east. This all depends on whether they are selected for the Davis cup team.

At any rate, the invitation field will be one of the best ever assembled. Most of the stars who play at Houston will come here and then go on to the Pinhurst tournament the following week.

ORCUTT WINNER IN FIRST MATCH

RELEAIR, Fla., March 12.—(P)—Maureen Orcutt, Englewood, N. J., driving star, today advanced along with other favorites in the Releair women's championship golf tournament, defeating Mrs. K. W. Foster, of Westley, R. I., 8 and 7.

Dorothy Gardner, 17-year-old player from Steubenville, Ohio, nosed out Kathryn Breen, 2 and 1, while the defending champion, Marion Miller, of Lexington, Ky., won over Helen Akroyd, of Philadelphia, 5 and 3.

Finding her game in the afternoon, Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., defeated Mrs. Charles Harbaugh, of Cleveland, 5 and 3.

Tomorrow's feature match brings together Miss Miley and Miss Orcutt.

DOWN The ALLEYS

The Gulf Refining Company Duckpin league will end its second round of bowling with its full ten teams represented on the maple paths this evening. Two of the teams are composed entirely of ladies and these fair pin smashers have made a creditable showing against the men in the win column.

Tonight the schedule is Gulf Pride vs. Gulf Oil; Gulf Spray vs. Gulf No-Nox; Gulf Lube vs. Gulf Gem; Good Gulf vs. Gulf Aviation; Gulf Solvent vs. Gulf Furnace.

The second night of bowling on the tenpin alleys has six teams from the City Tenpin loop slated to vie for the awards in the five-man team events in the city tenpin tourney.

The teams and players in tonight's bowling will include the Aces, with Gersh. Phillips, Thompson, Elliott and Hall; Woco-Peps, with Greshens, Whitman, Van Frank, Turner and Timmons; Atlanta Grinders, with I. C. C. And the Sinclair Refining Company have Normie, W. Elmer, Corbett, Running, Althausen; the Cavaliers will use Kelly, Luczak, Fisher, Becker, Brande; Specialists have Mitchell, McCoy, Ferree, Couden and Parker; Henry Elmer, captain of the Muench & Elmer team, has not returned to the roster of his five as yet.

The city handicap tenpin tournament will be bowled each night of this week, including Saturday afternoon and evening, with singles, doubles and five-man team events being bowled separately, with separate lists of awards for each event.

In the Sinclair Refining Company Duckpin league, a regular Wednesday afternoon bowling group, Sinclair Grinders bowled Sinclair Spot Remover; Sinclair Opaline vs. Sinclair H. C.; Sinclair Korose vs. Sinclair Pennsylvania; Sinclair P. D. vs. Sinclair I. C. C. And the Sinclair Refining Company ladies will have two teams bowling.

The Atlanta Paper Company and Atlanta Journal match, in the La Commercial league, should prove to be a very good one. The Atlanta Paper Company team, is one of the two ladies' teams that will go to the national duckpin bowling congress tournament at Washington.

The Pinson Tire five, another national duckpin bowling congress entry, is scheduled with Belle Isle Garage in a well-balanced contest. Model Laundry bowls Ellick's Bowling Center and Southern Railway and Downtown Chevrolet are scheduled as opponents.

The Capital City Duckpin league will have a substantial group of matches this evening with Grey Devils bowling Excelsior Laundry; Tri-State Construction vs. Independents; Fox Manufacturing Company vs. Old South Boys; Southern Freight Bureau vs. Atlanta Paper Company. A truly hot race is being staged for the pennant in this loop.

BROWN HOLDS LEWIS TO DRAW AT AUDITORIUM

Strangler Takes First Fall with Headlock; Davis Wins.

Orville Brown, the young Kansas athlete, last night held Ed (Strangler) Lewis to a draw in the main bout at the auditorium in Henry Weber's wrestling show.

The match climaxed what was probably the greatest crowd presented here in years and Brown's late fall to even the bout and his final three minutes of staving off a Lewis rush had the large crowd limp.

Lewis won the first fall in 50 minutes. He gave the crowd a magnificent exhibition of science. His speed is cut down. He isn't as resilient as before, which is natural after 27 years of grappling. But he used his weight in such a manner that only a young giant in perfect condition could have withstood it. He kept Brown working all the way.

HEADLOCK WINS.

The old headlock was the first fall, the ninth in a series following 50 minutes of clean wrestling with no rough stuff at all. He kept Brown down so much weight on the Kansas that he was too busy trying to wrestle out to use any rough tactics.

The next fall had gone 30 minutes with Lewis going after Brown with head locks. Brown escaped from one, tossing Lewis against the ropes and then Lewis for a front body scissors. Lewis was pulled over and Brown spun on him for the fall. It came quickly and unexpectedly.

In the three minutes left the crowd stood most of the time while Brown stood off the former champion.

It was a match which had Governor Talmadge, all the boxing commission and the crowd in cheers. The semi-windup offering Karl Davis and Joe Cox, the Red Demon, was also a fast one. Davis won it with a speckler finish. Each had a flying fall. They came back for the third one. As the bell rang, Davis, a former football player, left his feet.

Caught Cox while and had him pinned in nine seconds.

In the opening bout Pete Schue and Buck Weaver wrestled to a rough 3-minute draw.

Orville Brown's wife and son, the latter a five-year-old youngster who was introduced from the ring, saw the match.

It was the first time Brown had ever kept on even terms with Lewis. Last week he defeated Jim McMillin. "I am delighted," he said, "but I wish everyone knew just how tough it is to wrestle Lewis. He knows so much and he is so smart that he keeps one off."

Harry Kelley Is Leading Pitcher in Southern League

How Southern League Pitchers Ranked in 1934

EVENT	FIRST	SECOND	THIRD	FOURTH	FIFTH
Games Pitched	Kelley White 51	Stafford 48	Bryant 47	Brillheart 45
Complete Games	Kelley 27	Wetherell Touchstone 25	Nugent 23	Hughes 22
Innings Pitched	Kelley 313	Touchstone 275	Struss 266	Schmidt 257	Milnar 255
Games Won	Kelley 23	Speece 22	Johnson 20	Hughes 18
Winning Pct.	Johnson .800	Speece .733	Kelley .676	Gabler .667	Moon .654
Strikeouts	Struss 148	Kelley 143	Milnar 131	Speece 112	Schmidt 109
Earned Run Average	Milnar 2.61	Touchstone 2.78	Moon 2.88	Stafford 2.91	Speece 2.99

If one had to rely on purely personal opinion to ascertain the most valuable pitcher in the Southern league, perhaps a dozen different answers would be received from a dozen different people.

Likewise, if a group of managers and scouts was polled, probably each individual would render a different choice.

The only accurate manner by which to decide the best all-round boxman is to go to the figures of 1934. After all, it's performance that counts.

Any one set of figures fails to tell the story of pitching greatness. A combination of figures does lend a fair and conclusive insight as to the most valuable hurler in the league.

In the above table you see how the pitchers ranked in seven departments—games pitched, complete games, innings pitched, games won, winning percentage, strikeouts and earned run average. For every first and place position, one is awarded five points, for second place, four points, and on down to tenth place for fifth place.

However, some events are more important than others. For instance, a pitcher's earned run average means lots more to a club than his strikeout record. Thus, the earned run average is assigned triple value, strikeouts are given single value and the five other events double value.

It is seen that Harry Kelley led in four departments, was second in another and third in another. Outpitching in six events, he totaled 50 points to easily rank as the Southern league's most valuable pitcher.

Al Milnar of New Orleans and Clay Touchstone of Memphis, though far behind Kelley, tied for second with a total of 28 points each. Both benefited especially from the fact that they rated first and second, respectively, in earned run average.

Other leaders in order of points are: White, Birmingham, 10; Wetherell, Knoxville, 8; Schmidt, Atlanta, 5; Bryant, New Orleans, 4; Little Rock, and Hughes, Birmingham, 4; Gabler and Brillheart, Nashville, 2.

Byron Speece, Vol mainstay, was next. Then in order came Fred Johnson, a perennial topnotcher; Hal Stafford, Leo Moon and Clarence Struss.

The soundness of this system is reflected in the result. Few days went by that Harry Kelley didn't pitch a winning game himself or step in to save some other starter. So durable was he that pitching 313 innings did not at all hamper his effectiveness.

He goes into the 1935 season with stronger backing at Atlanta and should have an excellent chance to successfully defend his title of the league's best all-round pitcher.

GRIMM EXPECTS FIGHTING CUBS TO BE IN RACE

Manager Satisfied With Club as Boys Show Pep, Drive.

By George Kirksey.
SANTA CATALINA ISLAND, Cal., March 12.—(UP)—Over a backgammon table, covered with blue and black tile chips in scrambled disorder, Manager Charley Grimm, of the Chicago Cubs, today made his prediction on the National league pennant race.

"The Cubs will have the best-hustling team in the league," said Grimm. "Other clubs may beat us, but we'll outfight 'em. I won't have any other kind of team. Ball players who won't fight to the last ditch won't stay with the Cubs long."

A year ago Grimm made a prediction which got him in considerable trouble, especially with the fans. He said: "If the Cubs don't win the pennant I might as well start looking for a new job."

HE STAYED ON.

The Cubs didn't win the pennant. They finished third, but Grimm didn't lose his job. He was promoted during the winter to vice president, given more authority as manager and a raise in salary under the new regime which saw P. K. Wrigley, owner of the team, succeed William Walker as president.

NATURE Needs Help When CONSTIPATED

But don't defeat your own purpose by using purgatives so harsh that they leave your system in an exhausted condition.

Right now, while colds are so prevalent, Dr. Hitchcock's All-Vegetable Laxative Powder is especially recommended as a preventive of sickness. Mr. Colt, who was only 39 years of age when he became president of what is now the fifth largest bank in the United States, has sponsored many revolutionary innovations in banking which are designed to prepare the younger employees for more useful careers in the banking business. As part of his program to give the young men of his organization an opportunity to prepare themselves for advancement, he originated the plan of a touring school for 20 employees between the ages of 18 and 25. The group each summer makes a six weeks' tour of major industrial centers, traveling by truck.

RARE NERVE MALADY FATAL TO WOMAN HERE

Miss Martha Fowler Succumbs to Paralysis of Pulmonary Nerves.

A strange malady that paralyzed her pulmonary nerves brought death early Tuesday to Miss Martha Fowler after doctors and firemen worked for hours in an attempt to save her life with oxygen administered with artificial respiration.

The 26-year-old Southern railway employee was stricken suddenly Monday night at her home at 644 North Highland avenue, N. E., and was rushed to Grady hospital. Physicians were unable to determine the cause of the fatal paralysis, but for hours Monday night and Tuesday morning they gave her oxygen. When the supply at the hospital ran out, the reserve tanks from the fire department were brought to her bedside.

The young woman died shortly before 2 o'clock. Though the physicians signed the death certificate with the cause still unknown, Coroner Paul Donehoo announced there would be no autopsy or inquest.

The body was taken Tuesday night by Brandon-Bond-Condor to Choptank, Md., where her mother, Mrs. Z. M. Fowler Sr., her brother, Z. M. Fowler Jr., and two sisters, Miss Mary and Miss Louise Fowler, reside. The funeral will be held there.

"I Was Born This Way . . ." Cantor Tells Moro Gonzalez

EDDIE CANTOR—"A jittery little guy . . . he makes no bones about his gold standard . . . and pops up—any time—with bonjo-eyes of inordinate size . . ." comments our caricaturist.

By MORO GONZALEZ.
Noted Mexican Caricaturist.
He's a jittery pop-eyed little guy . . . Posing in his dressing room at New York's Selwyn theater he practices gags on yours truly . . . After each pun he rolls his eyes and asks, "Did you get it?" A publicity man sits by. I do my little "operation" . . . "Start drawing—it's your pencil, and it's not my paper. What do I care . . . I was born this way!" So spoke Eddie—who likes to make money and likes to make people laugh . . . He ever jests about his money—kids about his mercenary proclivities—and makes no bones about his gold standard. His "bonjo" is being a clown.

It's a fifty-fifty break that he seeks two pleasures in life: A swell "audience reaction"—and a mounting gross at the box office. With commercial wisdom he rode on the back of the New Deal through radio. George M. Cohan once waved stars and stripes. This boy sold cheer as a clowning propagandist for the democratic party.

He's willing to kid about his origin. He amuses with strange sounds offered as English speech by Semitic citizens of the Bronx. Cantor isn't young any more . . . but you can't escape this effervescent half-pint . . . Most any time—he'll pop up—with bonjo ears of inordinate size . . . Patter comes fast. Brunson Goes on Trial On Burglary Charges

George Brunson, 34, of Hamilton, Ga., one of three men arrested by DeKalb police after a gun battle in southeastern DeKalb county, February 8, went on trial Tuesday afternoon in DeKalb superior court on charges of possessing burglary tools.

W. O. Parker, chief of DeKalb police and the prosecution's main witness in the case, was on the stand all afternoon and recited the thrilling events that led up to the capture of Brunson and his two companions, George Gray, of New Orleans, and Frank Miller, of Dallas, who will be tried next week on similar charges.

One of 36 witnesses who have been called by the state, Chief Parker, while on the stand Tuesday afternoon, mentioned the attempted jail break which he said the trio had contemplated last Friday night, but which was thwarted when a telephone call warned the police of the attempt.

Chief Parker, at the close of the session Tuesday, was being cross-examined by William Schley Howard, defense counsel, and will resume the witness stand this morning to answer to further cross-examination.

CAPTURED FUGITIVES FACE NEW CHARGES

Frank Hughes, who traded his chain gang stripes for the clothes worn by a scarecrow when he escaped from the Paulding county chain gang and who was arrested with J. T. Maner and Cleve Buckner in the southern part of Fulton county Monday, was sent to Augusta Tuesday for trial on charges of cracking the safe at the Orange Crush Company there.

Maner was sent to Greenville, S. C., to answer charges in connection with the $3,000 robbery of a department store safe there.

Buckner, at whose home the men were arrested, and under whose house a quantity of burglar tools were found, has been charged with aiding an escape. He is a postoffice messenger.

for milder better taste

Because you cannot make a good cigarette from just one year's crop there are today 4½ miles of warehouses filled with cigarette tobaccos from the crops of 1931-32-33-34—most of it for Chesterfield cigarettes.

Just as money accumulates interest, two and a half years of ageing makes these tobaccos milder and naturally sweeter.

Think what this means—an eighty-five million dollar reason why men and women who smoke Chesterfields will always enjoy a milder, better-tasting cigarette.

Substitute Bridesmaids To Fill Place In Debutante Fashion Show Scene

By Sally Forth.

ATLANTA is having a real March of social events this month. Foremost in all this activity is the fashion show to be given in the name of sweet charity by the debutantes. The event will be staged on Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock in the ballroom at the Biltmore. Proceeds will be applied to the Cornelia Moore Day Nursery, the charity adopted by the social butterflies. Of course you know that Frances Welman Latimer will don her white satin bridal robes once more. She will re-enact the real role she assumed when she became the bride of Carroll Latimer last week in Cartersville.

But, here is something you did not know. For several reasons that cannot be revealed at the present writing, two of the bevy of charming bridesmaids who attended Frances on her wedding day will be missing from the group on Friday evening. Their places will be filled by Laura Troutman and Louise MacIntyre. It is up to you to guess who will take their places, provided the orchid taffeta costumes worn at Frances' wedding will fit the substitute bridesmaids in the entrancing bridal scene.

All-around-the-clock costumes will feature the revue in which 23 debuties will take part. They will step out of a beribboned hatbox to introduce a picturesque and original entry. Down the long runway these lovely belles will parade in the latest of the latest dance music rendered by the Tech Ramblers. Louise Robert, Mary Ann Carr and Octavia Riley will lead the vanguard of models stepping from the huge hatbox. The attractive trio compose the officers of the 1934-35 Debutante Club. You will recall that Maude Thompson, the fourth officer, is on a West Indies cruise and will be greatly missed from the interesting event.

In the first part of the program they will wear the latest spring outfits, featuring suits, coats, street and sports apparel. From 8:30 to 9:30, in the latter half, afternoon, dinner and evening gowns, bespeaking romance and glamour, will grace the lithe and slender figures of the models. The bridal scene mentioned above will be a brilliant climax to the occasion. The fashion show is not the only attraction that is in store for those attending. That artistic and efficient Margaret Bryan will be mistress of ceremony. She has planned a splendid program for the intermission. Everybody has a perfect right to expect a cleverly planned and Margaret Bryan does the planning. Tickets are 50 cents. So mark March 15 as a red-letter day on your engagement calendar. Help the debuties fill the coffers for their charity project.

HERE'S a story that is stranger than fiction. Not very long ago a certain prominent family spent a week in a distant city. While they were gone, burglars broke into the house and took jewelry belonging to the feminine members. A newspaper article stated that the house had been burglarized, but the story to be told to you was never printed. A day or two after the story appeared in the newspaper, the telephone rang and a man's voice said "Hello." He asked to speak with the young lady of the household. He told her he would return the jewelry if she promised not to inform the police.

Not very long after the telephone conversation, a well-dressed, handsome young man rang the doorbell. He entered the house and returned the jewelry, with the exception of a ring. He declared he did not break into the house himself. He knew who committed the deed, and thought he could locate the missing ring. The ring was returned a day or so later. To this day nobody knows the identity of the offender. Who denies that truth is stranger than fiction?

ATLANTA will be represented in the Gress-LeMaistre wedding personnel by Mr. and Mrs. James D. Robinson Jr., the nuptials to be brilliantly solemnized in Jacksonville on April 24. In naming Josephine as young matron of honor when the wedding LeMaistre, Gretchen Gress is returning the honor conferred upon her when just one year ago she acted as bridesmaid for Josephine when she became the bride of handsome Jim Robinson Jr.

The choosing of Jim for one of the groomsmen in the wedding makes it a double honor for these socially prominent young Atlantians, whose presence at any social function never fails to make it a success. Jim and Josephine will leave for Jacksonville several days before the wedding in order to attend the final social gayeties being given for Gretchen and her fiancé. No doubt other Atlantians will attend the wedding who claim friendship with the bride-elect's family, whose members are related to leading Georgians.

Dr. Lipscomb Feted At Social Affairs While in Atlanta

Mrs. D. T. Robinson entertained at tea on Tuesday at her home on Oakdale road in compliment to Dr. Herbert Cannon Lipscomb, of Lynchburg, Va., who was the featured speaker at the Founders' Day celebration of the Atlanta Alumnae of Randolph-Macon College. The tea followed the address made by Dr. Lipscomb, who is professor of ancient languages at the Virginia college.

The house was elaborately decorated in yellow and black, the Randolph-Macon colors. Ebony vases were filled with jonquils, forsythia and anemones. A lace cloth covered the dining room table, and yellow flowers and candles filled the bow windows and candelabra. Mrs. George N. Lester Jr. poured tea and Mrs. B. M. Hall presided at the silver coffee urn. Receiving with the hostess were Mesdames Alan Ford, Robert B. Taylor Jr., Miss Elizabeth Collier, and assisting were Mesdames Owen McConnell and B. M. Hall Jr.

Dr. Lipscomb was honor guest Monday evening at a dinner given at the home of his host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott Askew, on Peachtree street.

Mesdames George N. Lester Jr. and B. M. Hall Jr. entertained Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Lester on Emory drive at a luncheon honoring Dr. Lipscomb.

The luncheon table was adorned with a white vase filled with yellow flowers. Invited to meet the distinguished visitor were Misses Evelyn Howard, Rip Wood, Mary Wood, of Asheville, N. C., and Mrs. W. K. Alexander.

Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Taylor Jr. gave a luncheon supper for Dr. Lipscomb prior to his departure. Mrs. Taylor's dining table featured peach blossoms used with pink candles. Their guests were Miss Marie Askew, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Ford, and Dr. Lipscomb.

Entertaining Dancing Classes at Party.

Alliance Francaise To Meet Thursday

The Alliance Francaise of Atlanta will meet at Emory University on Thursday, March 14, at 3:30 o'clock in the chapel of the Theology building. The occasion is the visit of Guillaume Fatio, professor of the University of Geneva, who will speak on the subject, "Autour du Lac Lemane," picturing the Lake of Geneva and its environs. Monsieur Fatio has held important positions of international importance, is president of the "Societe des Arts de France," and the public interest in French to hear Monsieur Fatio.

Charles Loridan, president of the Alliance Francaise, sent consular letters in the speaker. He will introduce the speaker. He will return for this purpose from Florida where he and Mrs. Loridan have been vacationing for three weeks. Dean Goodrich C. White, of the college and graduate school of Emory University, will preside. The program will be as follows: 1. Address by Monsieur Fatio. 2. Address by Charles Loridan. 3. DANIEL IS CLEARED IN FLOOD SHORTAGE Committee Refuses To Take $1,200 From Ex-Marshall's Bondsman.

J. Ben Daniel, former city marshal, Tuesday afternoon was exonerated of any blame in connection with money shortages in the marshal's office during his tenure by action of the finance committee of council.

The committee turned down an offer of a cash settlement of about $1,200 from Daniel's bonding company after the former marshal had appeared before the committee and had asserted he "was forced by action of the 1931 finance committee to accept partial cash payments for his fee on file in his office and over my objections."

Auditors charged Daniel with a shortage of about $5,000 in advertising accounts, but Daniel Tuesday afternoon denied that he had handled any of that money or any of the partial payments in which the cash deficit of about $1,300 was credited.

"I never handled one nickel of that partial payment money, and told the finance committee that I should not be called upon to do so," Daniel asserted. "I delegated that matter to a clerk, Mr. Quinby (referring to the late L. D. Quinby, who, for a time, was on the marshal's window). He was the custodian of that fund, and he had a bond of $500. The city should proceed to collect that bond."

"There is not a crooked bone in my body, and I did not take any money which was not mine. I am not able to pay any money to the city or to bondsmen for a shortage with which I had nothing to do. The city is better able to take the rap than I am."

If council and Mayor Key approve the finance committee's recommendation, the suit now pending in the courts against Daniel's bondsmen will be dropped, and the city will take the cash loss.

Mayor Key has insisted that the city obtain a settlement, and when the matter was referred to a subcommittee to consider the matter.

A subcommittee was established to work out details of completion of the purchase of the John A. White park and golf course in West End. The plan to own 21 acres of the tract now.

NEW FILM EXCHANGE OPENED HERE BY MGM

The completely modern, up-to-date film exchange of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's district headquarters in Atlanta, the Luckie street, N. W., was christened Tuesday afternoon at a house warming held at the new building.

The recently constructed quarters are entirely modern in every respect and go the movie underwriters' code one better in the city.

According to Charles Kessnich, district manager.

Automatic sprinklers, heavy iron doors, with automatic shut in case of fire, and a fireproof building in every detail are the outstanding features of the new offices.

The offices of the district manager and those of the branch manager are beautifully paneled, heavy Chinese rugs cover the floors and pictures of exquisite taste are hung on the walls.

But the office combines beauty with business. Six girls in the film checking department look out and check until it is in perfect condition, more than 75,000 feet of film each week.

This film is sent to the 300 theaters supplied by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation. Among these the company numbers Loew's Grand theater of Atlanta as one of its most beautiful and largest in this district.

Other parts of the new building are divided into the shipping department from where the films are shipped, and to which they are returned after they have been shown. Much of this shipping is done through the film trucking service of The Atlanta Constitution.

Enormous fireproof vaults are on the ground floor of the building, where the films are stored awaiting shipment.

All correspondence and filing and accounting is done in a large, well-lighted office on the second floor. The managers' offices are on this floor.

The filing department where bills, receipts, posters and press books of the pictures are kept completes this spacious modern building.

Friends, business associates and members of the press flooded the building at the house warming at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Refreshments were served all present, and the guests were shown over the building by Mr. Kessnich and Roy Avery, the branch manager.

This building is the most modern and best equipped of its kind in this section of the country, according to Mr. Kessnich, and when finished will have its own projection room, a small theater, where the pictures will be reviewed.

$300,000 Tax Action Lost by Macon Mills

Judge C. B. Kennamer, of Montgomery, sitting in federal district court here Tuesday, ruled against the Bibb Manufacturing Company in a petition in which they sought to recover approximately $300,000 in taxes paid the internal revenue department of the federal government on returns made August 31, 1920.

The suit was brought in 1930 against Josiah T. Rose, collector of internal revenue for this district, who charged excessive taxation on raw cotton owned by the company.

1,162,502 FAMILIES ON RELIEF IN SOUTH

Total Cost for 13 States in January Placed at $29,883,330.

By the Associated Press.

Federal relief funds are feeding 1,162,502 families in the 14 southern states, figures just released in Washington by Administrator Harry L. Hopkins revealed Tuesday.

The figures detailing expenditures for January, showed further that the cost of relief in the south was perhaps the lowest for any section of the nation.

Total cost of maintaining the southern indigents was $29,883,330, smaller by more than $2,000,000 than the relief costs in New York state alone. During January, $32,000,000 was spent in the Empire state.

For the entire nation, the relief administration cared for 4,533,000 families during January at an aggregate cost of $196,139,193. Hopkins estimated 20,500,000 persons were benefiting.

The number of families cared for in the south and the amounts expended were made public as follows:

Families	Amount
Alabama	57,715 $1,854,351
Arkansas	77,548 1,749,052
Florida	70,900 1,637,083
Georgia	77,007 2,428,000
Kentucky	102,381 1,824,076
Louisiana	42,556 2,371,709
Maryland	41,405 1,924,491
Mississippi	60,153 1,383,016
North Carolina	68,608 1,751,205
Oklahoma	139,640 2,782,157
South Carolina	61,538 1,370,590
Tennessee	67,603 1,618,027
Texas	252,844 6,010,544
Virginia	44,474 1,178,262
Totals	1,162,502 $29,883,330

case is closed, so far as they are concerned.

The body of Costello was taken by Harry J. Pooler Tuesday to Philadelphia, where he formerly resided, for funeral rites and interment.

Guard Yourself Against Hazards With Full Insurance Protection

Why tempt misfortune? Those who do often compose the element in society that stands in need of charity; their children, if kept in their homes running busily.

It's best to pause and sanely think out problems that affect you, and then take measures to guard yourself against hazards that best your path in life.

Every day you read in the newspapers of some horrible accident which claims life or limb, and you know that privation will result. Proper insurance protection would have averted this latter situation.

Are you properly insured? Are your loved ones safeguarded against this sort of thing?

The insurance offered you through The Atlanta Constitution is issued by the North American Accident Insurance Company, of Chicago, Ill., which company has already paid Atlanta Constitution subscribers over $200,000. The insurance is offered to subscribers of the daily and Sunday

Constitution, and immediate dependent members of the subscriber's family between the ages of 15 and 69 on the one subscription going into the home at a small registration fee of 20 cents with application and 10 cents per month thereafter in addition to the subscription price of $1 each per policy per year in advance to subscribers who live in Atlanta and Atlanta suburbs where we have carrier delivery. Out-of-town subscribers can have this insurance by paying $1 per policy per year in advance.

This insurance offered through The Atlanta Constitution provides for payment of sums ranging downward from $10,000 for travel, $1,000 for auto and pedestrian deaths resulting from certain specified causes, $5,000 for permanent injuries, and $10 weekly indemnity for total disability resulting from accidents set forth in the policy, which is at the rate of $43.33 per month.

In sending application for insurance, the applicant must state name in full, give age, occupation, and if beneficiary is desired the full Christian name of beneficiary must be given and relationship of same to the insured.

Recorder Cone said he would let a judge and a 12-man jury hear the testimony of the following in city criminal court: Snookie Woods, the star; Mike Dennis, and Tamara Reno, strip artists, and Joan Frank, Hazel DeVoe, Charlotte Gray and Monte D. chorus girls.

The case against Jack Patton, comedian, was dismissed when Paul Mathis, another comedian, testified it was he and not Patton who appeared on the stage in a bedroom skirt wearing red flannel underwear. Recorder Cone said there was no law against red flannel, and that he was a red flannel wearer until he was 18 years old.

Things That Make Women More Beautiful

A Wonderful Oil That Helps Push Cold Cream Into the Pores

By MIGNON.

Gather round me you dryskin sufferers! I've found something that works like magic in softening the skin, and does especially efficient work if used with a good cold cream. Why an oil would drive the cream into the pores is pretty difficult for me to understand, but I have tried it now for nearly a year, and believe me it works like magic.

First, I use a cream called "nourishing," that is rich with olive oil, and it's not too firm, but soft enough to spread instantly. It is made by the manufacturer who is in full, give me a sample of it for a minute. I dip my fingers into the oil, which comes in a bottle with a light green screw top. I run the oil over the cold-cream surface, and my dry skin soaks it up like the hungry earth drinks rain.

The oil, while the initial coat might seem a little bit heavy, really lasts a long time, because with one dip of the fingers you can pick up enough to spread over a large area. It is not thick and you don't need to waste any. I do not consider the oil the least bit extravagant, because of its lasting quality. It comes in various sized bottles and you can buy a small one to experiment with.

Something of this kind is especially desirable for people who go south in the winter and come home with skins burned dry and rather coarse. Sun builds you up, but what it does to a soft complexion is something to mope low about.

I have found this oil perfect for using on the scalp before a shampoo. If you have hair dried out by too many permanent waves or a naturally dry scalp, its trick of being quickly absorbed by the skin makes it perfect for scalp use. It is best to leave it on overnight. Just spread a bath towel over your pillow and fasten it at the corners, and the towel will catch any excess oil, but the chances are, if you need an oil rub, there won't be any excess.

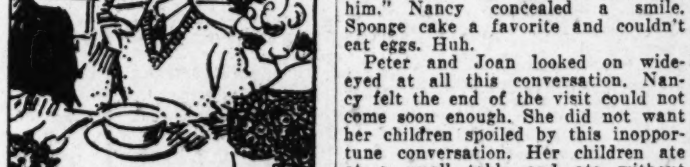

If you are interested in this, and I recommend it after a year's trial, I'd be glad to tell you what it is. If you want to know where you can purchase any article mentioned in this column phone Mignon at The Constitution. Please do not write, unless you live outside the city, in which case enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Peter Is Taken Visiting and Gets Bad Impression difference in children. Yours are strong and hearty. I suppose their appetites are so good they eat anything. But my Johnnie has always been fussy. He never would drink his milk. He says it makes him sick. Frank drinks his milk like a soldier, don't you, Frankie, but it's funny, Frank can't eat an egg. The mere sight of one upsets him. He knows when I put one in his cereal or hide it in his mashed potato. Oh yes, he eats cake. He is especially fond of sponge cake. I always have some for him. Nancy concealed a smile. Sponge cake a favorite and couldn't eat eggs. Hub.

Peter and Joan looked on wide-eyed at all this conversation. Nancy said the end of the visit could not come soon enough. She did not want her children spoiled by this inopportune conversation. Her children ate at a small table and without fuss. They never heard food likes and dislikes discussed and certainly their own peculiarities were never trotted out in the open in front of them. When that is done children keep on being fussy because they like to be the center of conversation.

Nancy has a leaflet on "Cake Making," which she will gladly send on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address her care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Pattern 5191. CROCHET GLOVES FOR SPRING AND SUMMER.

If she wants to cut figure, Mi-lady's hands must be gloved in crochet these days. And who of us wouldn't want to be when the gloves look like these? A lacy mesh in a cotton thread, a dainty flaring edge in an open design! What wear you will have of them through spring and summer and what is most important, how well-dressed you will feel. The gloves, simple to make, will add a smart accessory to your wardrobe.

In pattern 5191 you will find detailed instructions for making the gloves shown; material requirements; illustrations of the gloves and of all stitches used.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents to Household Arts Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

We have a weekly argument in our home about my husband's going out rather frequently to play cards with some bachelor friends. On these evenings I sit at home and read or amuse myself the best way I can. Perhaps I am a little jealous but I believe it is more than this. I wouldn't want to leave him and I can't understand why he enjoys getting away from me so often. We have been married for two years. The first year he seemed to prefer to stay at home with me but now he accepts most of the invitations he gets. Tell me if I am unreasonable.

K. E. R.

ANSWER:

Yes, you are unreasonable in complaining of your husband's desire to play cards with his old cronies. The method you are pursuing to kill this desire only inflames it and the more you nag, the more he will want to get away. No man wants a wife hanging on his neck like a dead weight. No man wants a marriage of bondage that makes it impossible for him to get out with his gang occasionally and spend an evening without the repressive presence of his wife. For the best wives do repress their husbands.

No matter how jealous you are of his friends, no matter how resentful you feel at his being willing to leave you, you should pretend that it is agreeable to you to have him go. Why? Because you can't hold him against his will and every time you make an issue of his going, you drive a peg that pricks you apart. The men are as like in their resent the idea of being dominated by their wives. Their independence is sweet to them and they will fight to the last ditch to preserve it.

There are just two methods by which a woman can make her husband do to suit her. One is to make him love her so much that he doesn't want to displease her. The other is for her to make him afraid of her. In either event he will conform to her wishes after a fashion but what self-respecting woman wants a husband who fears her and what self-respecting woman wants her husband to spend the evening with her when he is dying to get out and away from her? What we get from our loved ones by demands is worth nothing after we get it. Not even the assurance of our power over them (this is the matter) nets us satisfaction.

The germ of real trouble is in a situation such as you describe and you are cultivating the germ in the best possible way. The fact that your husband wants to maintain his association with the friends of his bachelor days doesn't indicate that he lacks interest in you, or love for you. Then don't fret him and yourself by intimating that you interpret it in this way.

The next time he suggests a game with his gang agree that it is a fine idea and instead of going to bed with your book invite some friends in and spend a pleasant time entertaining them. When he married you he didn't promise to nurse you like a baby, keep you supplied with toys and stand by to see that you were amused with them. He took it for granted that a grown woman had some self-sufficiency, some resourcefulness. Then don't disappoint him and make him rue the day he said "I do."

Mrs. Lawrence's Address Opens Convention of State B. W. M. U.

By MRS. S. L. ASTIN, State Publicity Chairman B. W. M. U. FORSYTH, Ga., March 12.—Mrs. Una Roberts Lawrence, Kansas City, Mo., southside mission study chairman of the Baptist W. M. U. auxiliary to the Southern Baptist convention, delivered a convincing and thrilling address, "The Missionary Message," at the Tuesday evening session of the Georgia Baptist Women's Missionary Union assembled at Bessie Tift College, Forsyth, for the fifty-third annual convention. Mrs. Lawrence is a gifted writer and brilliant speaker. She made an earnest plea for a more conscientious study of the missionary work of the church, and in part, "missions is the continuing work of Jesus Christ in the world, through the Holy Spirit in the hearts of saved men and women." Mrs. J. B. Lawrence, wife of the secretary of the home mission board of the Southern Baptist Convention, led the devotional service in an impressive manner.

The convention was called to order at 7:30 P. M. today by the president, Mrs. Ben S. Thompson, prominent Baptist woman assembled for the opening session. Miss Mattie V. Summer, missionary on furlough from China, used as the basis for the opening prayer period the convention theme, "In His Name." Her well chosen words made a fine impression and established a background of high thinking and prayerful meditation for the sessions to come.

By FRANK MCMILLAN.

NEW YORK, March 12.—(P)—Security

markets still appeared shaken today. Further late trading in cotton before it steadied, and a resumption of weakness in the pound sterling were unsettling.

Stocks were able to hold a fairly even level throughout most of the day, but late pressure found takers scarce and leading issues declined fractions to around 2 points or so, with a few metals and specialties dropping more.

Volume was moderately accelerated, passing the million-share mark at 1,040,280, for the first time in a week. The substantial offerings of late trading pushed the Associated Press average for 60 stocks off 5.2 of a point to a new low for 1935 of 35.2. The average is now only 0.5 of a point above the 1934 low of 34.8.

Bonds Decline.

Bonds gave ground along with equities. Secondary loans lost fractions to around 1 point or so for the most part, and even the best grade issues were mildly easier. Government obligations were mixed, with small declines in the secondary.

Cotton finally ended the session down 35 cents a bale to 5 cents higher, after declining as much as $2 at one time. Wheat and corn, however, appeared to have regained a modicum of stability, finishing virtually unchanged in the Chicago grain pit.

Utility stocks on the average were considerably more resistant to general market weakness than were the industrial issues. Most of the leading holding companies held their declines to fractions, including public utility of New Jersey at 20 1/2. Consolidated Gas at 16 1/4 and North American at 9 5/8. Brokerage circles said the group gave every indication of being thoroughly shaken.

No Pick-up Signs.

Observers saw in the second reduction in a few days in the price of steel scrap at Pittsburgh a reflection of the recent slumping of steel operations. Some of those who follow the situation of the industry closely in Wall Street reported that there were as yet no signs of a pick-up of railroad purchases of steel. This development had been hoped for in many quarters to supplant to some extent the takings of the automobile concerns, whose demands are believed to be approaching a seasonal peak.

A few stock leaders got down as much as 3 to 4 points, including American Sugar at 54 7/8, Owens-Illinois Glass at 51 1/4 and Spiegel-May-Stern at 57. Among losers of 1 to 2 points were Air Reduction at 100, Atlantic Coast at 20 1/8, Allied Chemical at 131, American Can at 112 1/2, American Smelting at 32 5/8, Bethlehem Steel at 23 1/2, General Motors at 29 1/2, Union Carbide at 44 3/4, Montgomery Ward at 21 3/4 and Chrysler at 31 1/8. American Telephone at 106 1/2, Union Pacific at 84 1/2, Standard Oil of New York at 36 1/2, National Biscuit at 25 7/8 held about even.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

Information

CLOSING HOURS
Want Ads are accepted up to 5 p. m. for publication the next day. The closing hour for the Sunday edition is 3:30 p. m. Saturday.

CLASSIFIED RATES

Daily and Sunday rates per line for consecutive insertions:
One line..... 30 cents
Three lines..... 75 cents
Seven lines..... 1.50
Minimum, 3 lines (15 words).

In estimating the space to be as figure the average words to a line. Ads ordered for three or seven days and stopped before expiration will only be charged for the number of times the ad appeared and adjustments made at the rate earned. Errors in advertisements should be reported immediately. The Constitution will not be responsible for more than one incorrect listing. All want ads are restricted to the proper classification and the advertiser is expected to read promptly.

Ads ordered by telephone are accepted from persons listed in the telephone or city directory on a non-refundable charge. No return for this courtesy the advertiser is expected to read promptly.

TARZAN AND THE FIRE GODS No. 15

Now the high priest asked Arbel what message the heavenly visitor had brought to the people of Canaan. The girl thought quickly. She must connect a message of such astonishing import that the tribes would look with proper awe and reverence upon her new-found friend.

His wife is invited to attend the funeral of Mr. Willie James Curtis today from our chapel at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. M. Cunningham officiating. Interment Chestnut Hill cemetery.

In Memoriam.
In loving memory of our dear husband, father and brother, Mr. Robert Samuel Jones.
Days of sadness still come
Over us, secret tears so often flow,

We who loved him sadly miss him
As today two years ago.
